FOR NATIONAL DEFENSE—

Industrial College of the Armed Forces

By REAR ADM. W. M. L. HAGUE, USN
Commandant

INTERNATIONAL tensions and the Federal expenditures and supporting taxes required to keep them within peaceful bounds directly affect the national economy and each individual citizen. The courses presented by the Industrial College of the Armed Forces do more than outline the background for and nature of the actions required for wartime mobilization of this nation's economic strength. By focusing study on the structure and operation of the national economy, they sharpen the student's appreciation of the impact of military demand upon the civilian economy and the importance of strict controls over expenditures in peace or war. This reflects the keen awareness of this relationship by the top civilian and military officials of the Department of Defense.

Rear Adm. Hague

Started as the Army Industrial College in 1924 to train officers for procurement and industrial mobilization planning duties, it was redesignated as the Industrial College of the Armed Forces in 1946 in recognition of its joint-service status. In 1948 the Secretary of Defense approved its reconstitution as a joint educational institution operating under the direction of the Joint Chiefs of Staff at the highest level in the educational field within the military establishment. The mission now assigned by its charter is "to prepare selected officers of the Armed Forces for important command, staff and planning assignments in the Department of Defense, and to prepare selected civilians for important industrial mobilization planning assignments in any government agency."

Implicit in the mission is a thorough study of the whole gamut of complex problems involved in economic mobilization and demobilization, including manpower, technological progress, natural resources, requirements, procurement, economic stabilization, production, public services, economic potential, distribution logistics, joint strategic logistics planning and mobilization. Because of the world situation, it is not enough that the students plumb these subjects as applied to the United States alone. Necessarily, the major units of the course must be studied

Incentive Pay Group Plans Busy Schedule

The first full meeting of the Special Military Pay Commission will be held shortly after the Election and will be followed by a busy schedule of hearings and field visits.

Actually, this will be the second meeting of the group, officially the Civilian Commission on Incentive-Hazardous Duty and Special Pays.

Under the chairmanship of Rear Adm. Lewis L. Strauss, a Naval Reserve officer, the Commission held a "quickie session" at the Pentagon on 10 Oct. to make preliminary plans.

A detailed agenda will be worked up at the next meeting, tentatively scheduled within a fortnight after the election.

In addition to hearing testimony by Service representatives at the Pentagon, the Commission is expected to make a number of field visits to representative military installations.

How long the study will take is not certain, but an informed source predicted that a report probably would be ready for transmittal to the Senate Armed Services Committee shortly after the New Year.

The Civilian Commission study of Special Military Pay was requested by Senator Richard B. Russel (D-Ga.) of the Armed Services Services Committee after a subcommittee held brief hearings on this matter during the 82d Congress.

The Commission will study such special pay as combat pay, flight pay, submarine pay, overseas allowances, and physician and dentist pay.

The pay of hundreds of thousands of men and women in Service may be affected by the recommendations of Admiral Strauss' commission. Other members are Don G. Mitchell, President of Sylvania Products; Harold Moulton, former President of Brookings Institution; John Thomas Cahill, member of the New York law firm of Cahill, Gordon, Zachry and Reindel; and Joseph Campbell, Vice President of Columbia University.

Because of the exhaustive study made by the Hook Commission on the subject of Special Military Pay, the new Commission undoubtedly will be aided by the voluminous data accumulated during the earlier inquiry.

The Secretary of the Defense has assigned Rear. Adm. J. L. Womble, USN, as director of a permanent staff for the Commission. In addition, each Service has assigned an officer to aid in the study.

SC School To Athens, Ga.

The officers' section of the Navy Supply Corps School, now located at Bayonne, N. J., will be moved to the Coordinate Campus of the University of Georgia at Athens next Fall.

Rear Adm. Charles L. Austin, SC, USN, heads the faculty and administrative staff of the School, which numbers about 41. Approximately 375 students attend the basic, five-month qualification courses.

AF Promotion Rules

An Air Force spokesman late this week said that a paper prescribing rules for the forthcoming selection of officers for placement on temporary promotion eligibility lists is expected to be approved momentarily.

There was speculation that USAF Headquarters might announce next week the details of how these selections are to be made.

Because of the Davis Amendment, promotions will be slowed down considerably, but Air Force officials have stated repeatedly that a strong effort will be made early in the 83d Congress to repeal the restrictive rider to the Appropriations Bill.

Aside from this proposed action, there are a limited number of vacancies and some promotions can be made after the selections are completed.

House Group Wants More Punishment for Spenders

Apparently disappointed that there have been "only a few isolated instances" of punishment having been meted out to officers who fail to make "careful use of public funds," the House Subcommittee on Military Public Works Appropriations demanded this week that each of the Armed Services submit to it a complete list of disciplinary measures taken for such offenses since 1 July 1950.

"Through the action of this and other committees," the Subcommittee reported, "the insistence of Congress upon austerity in military construction has been impressed on the Services. The committee has not been satisfied with steps that have been taken to assure compliance with economy directives by uniformed officers of the armed services. Only a few isolated instances of disciplinary action occasioned by disregard for careful use of public funds have been reported to the committee in response to its request for such information. The committee requests, therefore, that each of the services furnish a complete report on such disciplinary measures taken since 1 July 1950, prior to the presentation of the fiscal year 1954 budget request for military public works."

While finding fault with military public works, the report stated that the committee had found that many concrete steps are being taken to strengthen military construction procedures.

It pointed specifically to:

(a) The appointment of a Director of Installations for the Department of Defense to exercise surveillance over the military construction picture.

(b) Definite improvement in approaching the goal of austerity.

(c) Certain advances, particularly in the case of barracks, toward standardization of plans and specifications within each service.

The committee said that one of the greatest fields for improvement is in the

Gen. Sarnoff Directs Study of Manpower

Brig. Gen. David Sarnoff, Chairman of the Board of the Radio Corporation of America, was named this week by Secretary of Defense Robert A. Lovett to head the Citizens Advisory Commission on Manpower Utilization in the Armed Services.

The Commission, which will work with, and report to Assistant Secretary of Defense Anna M. Rosenberg, will be composed of seven eminent civilians, including General Sarnoff, and retired general or flag officer from the Army, Navy, Air Force, and Marine Corps.

The purpose of the Commission, an official Pentagon announcement states, "will be to make a comprehensive study of the tables of organization and distribution of the Armed Services in order to accomplish the most economical and effective use of military manpower without diminishing combat effectiveness."

Creation of such a Commission was demanded by the Senate Preparedness Subcommittee in July. A rider to the '53 Appropriations Bill also asks for new manpower and equipment economies.

Announcement of General Sarnoff's appointment followed the earlier release at the Pentagon of a letter—text here-with—sent by Secretary Lovett to Senator Lyndon Johnson (D-Tex.), Preparedness Subcommittee Chairman, in which Mr. Lovett explained the difficulties being experienced in naming the membership of the Commission.

General Sarnoff's appointment as Chairman is seen as certain to make easier this task. It can now be expected that the entire membership of the Commission will be made known shortly, possibly before the Election.

Mr. Lovett, in announcing Mr. Sarnoff's appointment, pointed to the great progress that has been made by Mrs. Rosenberg, with the cooperation of the Services, over the past two years. He said: "Under Mrs. Rosenberg's leadership in the critical area of manpower and personnel, we have built up our forces to an effective and increasingly efficient force of 3.6 million men. We have instituted progressively better utilization practices and have achieved greater economy in the use and assignment of our men in uniform. The Commission, headed by Mr. Sarnoff, will have the important long-term job of looking at the

Continued Red Attacks Repulsed; U.S. Destroyer Hit; Planes Support Troops

CONTINUOUS enemy pressure was exerted during this week on Allied positions in the Central Korean hills, but practically all Red attacks were repulsed, with no important changes in the line. Rain and fog made the fighting difficult for both sides, and greatly impeded air operations on several days.

Ground action was especially violent on the slippery slopes of Sniper Ridge, where Chinese Communist troops made repeated attacks on South Korean positions on the crest. At one time the enemy forced Allied troops to evacuate advance posts, but an aggressive counter-attack by the South Korean 2d Division regained the lost ground.

On Triangle Hill, west of Sniper Ridge, the U.S. 7th Division engaged in sporadic fighting with the enemy, and consolidated their positions by wiping out pockets of the enemy holding isolated portions of the hill.

Sharp local engagements were fought on Iron Horse Mountain, overlooking the Chorwon Valley, on the western face of the so-called Iron Triangle. Elements of the South Korean 9th Division attacked enemy positions on the southern slope of the mountain, which had changed hands several times in the past two weeks. They fought their way almost to the top, but a dense fog prevented their reaching the summit. Later, they succeeded in gaining the crest, but were forced to yield it to the Communists.

USS Lewis Hit

Enemy shore guns scored two hits on the U.S. Destroyer Lewis, off the east coast port of Wonsan, killing six members of the crew, and wounding a seventh, who later died. A 75mm shell hit the forward fire room, putting a boiler out of commission. Despite the damage the Lewis continued on station, protecting two South Korean minesweepers, operating close inshore.

Heavy weather interfered with Allied air operations during much of the week, but American F-86 Sabre Jets had a few brushes with enemy MiGs, and increased their score of Red planes destroyed or damaged. When weather permitted Allied planes made heavy attacks on enemy front-line positions, materially aiding ground troops in the defense of critical heights in Central Korea. Numerous enemy troop billets and supply installations were hit by fighter-bombers and light and medium bombers, and lines of communications were interdicted in day and night strikes.

Most of the heavy ground fighting during the week was concentrated in the hill masses of the central front, where key heights changed hands several times, though no major penetration was made by either side. Rain and fog hampered both air and ground operations in this sector, as mud and slime made precarious footing for the infantry, and thick fog prevented visual air attacks on several days.

On the western front small enemy groups probed Allied outposts west and northwest of Yonchon, and southeast of Panmunjom, but were driven off in brief fire-fights. Allied troops recaptured a small hill northwest of Yonchon that had previously been lost. United Nations raiding parties, operating south of Panmunjom, fought engagements up to 45 minutes in length with enemy units of platoon size.

One enemy group of about 50 men made a night attack on a small Allied unit at an advance position near Arrowhead Ridge, northwest of Chorwon. The occupying unit broke contact and directed Allied artillery fire on the enemy, forcing a withdrawal, after which the position was re-occupied. A Red company attacking T-Bone Hill, west of Chorwon, was repulsed.

Night Attacks

On the central front two enemy battalions made repeated night attacks on Republic of Korea 2d Division positions on Sniper Hill, northeast of Kumwha. In one of these attacks the enemy captured Pinpoint Hill on the ridge and held it temporarily, but counter-attacking South

Up Rotation Points

General Mark W. Clark, Far East Commander, confronted with a lack of adequate replacements, has had to increase from 36 to 38 points the Rotation criteria for thousands of troops in Korea. Front-line soldiers will continue to receive four points credit per month and, as quickly as possible, will be rotated on a 36-point basis.

A background story on the Rotation problem is published on Page 228 of this issue.

Koreans regained the height after an intense, close-in fight.

Desultory fighting took place on several days of the week between elements of the U.S. 7th Division on Triangle Hill and Chinese Communists on Pike's Peak to the north which was captured by the Reds late last week. Occasional attacks were made by enemy units on Triangle Hill, but all were repulsed in sharp fighting.

At the eastern end of the Chorwon Valley troops of the South Korean 9th Division, which had lost Iron Horse Mountain on 18 October, vigorously counter-attacked and fought their way to within 40 yards of the crest, but dense fog closed in and interfered with the advance, preventing them from reaching their objective. Elsewhere on the central front raiding parties and patrols fought engagements up to an hour in length. Subsequently, they drove the Reds from the peak, but later lost it again to the enemy.

During most of the week the eastern front was relatively quiet. An enemy patrol, probing Allied outposts northwest of Kansong, was driven off after a brief fight. There were numerous other short skirmishes in the eastern sector, but none of more than small local significance.

Fog Slows Action

Low-hanging clouds and fog that prevailed over much of Korea during several days of this week handicapped Allied naval planes and surface vessels in their operations on both coasts. The U.S. Cruiser Helena and the Destroyer Stemmer, operating in the Pyong-ni area, were able to inflict some damage on interdiction targets. Hits were registered on a railroad repair building, and several small landslides were started which covered tracks and bridge approaches.

The U.S. Destroyer Tingey damaged numerous bunkers and other installations on the east coast battle line, south of Kosong. Shore fire control parties reported excellent coverage of the targets.

In addition to enemy shore fire which inflicted the damage and casualties sustained by the Lewis and its crew near Wonsan, there were several other instances in which surface vessels were shelled by enemy shore batteries. The U.S. Destroyer Parks dueled with shore guns south of Tanchon. After about 30 shells from the Red artillery fell short of the vessel the Parks quickly silenced the enemy gun position with 66 well-placed rounds of 5-inch shells. The U.S. Minesweeper Redhead, conducting a sweep in the same vicinity, received two airbursts from enemy batteries, but no damage or casualties resulted.

In west coast surface action the British Destroyer Charity fired on Red troops and silenced gun positions near Chinampo.

Navy jet planes from the Bon Homme Richard hit marshaling yards, bridges, railroads and barracks in the Wonsan-Jowon area of the east coast, while propeller planes from the Essex and Bon Homme Richard flew close support missions for ground troops, ripping hundreds of yards of trenches, and wiping out artillery and mortar positions and bunkers. Other carrier planes destroyed rail cars, tracks and bridges in the Simpo area. Skyraiders and Corsairs made numerous rail cuts and destroyed or damaged more than a score of buildings.

Essex planes joined in the duel between the Destroyer Lewis and Red shore batteries, knocking out six gun positions.

Services Submit Report On Integration Progress

Senator Hubert H. Humphrey (D-Minn.) released this week the text of a report he received from the Assistant Secretary of Defense, Anna M. Rosenberg, stating the most recent progress made by the Defense Department in eliminating segregation in the Armed Forces.

In releasing the report, Senator Humphrey announced that this was one in a series of oral and written reports which he had received from the Defense Department in the past year on the problem of integration.

"I command the Defense Department," Senator Humphrey said, "for the tremendous progress toward integration which has been made to carry out the Executive Order of President Truman. Ever since March 1951, when I met with Secretary Rosenberg and officials of the Army with regard to questions of segregation and universal military training, I have been impressed with the steady determination to eliminate segregation once and for all in the Armed Forces. In some areas progress has been slow, in others satisfactory, but I am convinced that in most cases the change has been to the good."

Senator Humphrey pointed out that since the first meeting with Secretary Rosenberg integration has been accomplished in all training divisions and in all replacement training centers throughout the United States. He likewise referred to the fact that in 1952 the Far Eastern Command completed its process of integration and discontinued racial designations previously applied to certain units. "Integration is also continuing," Senator Humphrey said, "in Alaskan, Austrian and European Commands."

The text of Secretary Rosenberg's letter follows:

Dear Senator Humphrey:

We refer again to your letter of 8 July 1952 which was acknowledged on 24 July. This relates to your interest in the progress in the elimination of segregation in the Armed Forces and to your call for current information up this subject.

The record is one of steady and consistent progress, with no untoward incidents of any significance. I firmly believe that the record is undeniable evidence that the Services have approached the problem honestly and with determination and that great further strides may be anticipated. My various trips abroad during the past two years have strengthened this conviction. One of the most striking, rewarding and tangible results is the more effective utilization of the total manpower resources of the Nation.

Department of the Army

In March 1951, representatives of the Department of the Army presented to you and interested colleagues, in conference, information on the General subject of the utilization of Negro manpower in the Army.

At that time, individual integration had been accomplished in all military schooling and in most training divisions. A few Negro units had been made organic parts of larger white units. It was emphasized that the process of Army integration must be gradual and not geared to a specific timetable.

Since March 1951, integration has been accomplished in all training divisions and in replacement training centers throughout the United States. In May 1952, the Far East Command completed the process of integration, including the discontinuance of racial designations previously applicable to certain units. These are two highly significant advances.

In the Alaskan, Austrian and European Commands, programs of gradual integration have been initiated and are being progressively implemented. The procedures followed in this regard are comparable to those used successfully in the Far East Command. In the continental United States, integration is nearing completion in the three Regular Army divisions and many Non-division units, regardless of geographical location.

At the present time, the number of all Negro units in the Army is approximately one-third less than that of May 1951, and the decline is continuing. Racial designation has been progressively removed from the units throughout the Army.

Department of the Navy

The Navy has submitted the following report:

"The Secretary of the Navy issued the following policy statement to all ships and stations in June 1949:

1. Reference (a) (AINav 423-45) is cancelled and superseded by this letter.

2. It is the policy of the Navy Department that there shall be equality of treatment and opportunity for all persons in the Navy and Marine Corps without regard to race, color, religion, or national origin.

3. In their attitude and day-to-day conduct of affairs, officers and enlisted personnel of the Navy and Marine Corps shall adhere rigidly and impartially to the Navy Regulations, in which no distinction is made between individuals wearing the uniform of these Services.

4. All personnel will be enlisted or appointed, trained, advanced or promoted, assigned duty and administered in all respects without regard to race, color, religion, or national origin.

5. In the utilization of housing, messing, berthing and other facilities no special or unusual provisions will be made for the accommodation of any minority race.

"At the present time there is no segregation in the Navy or Marine Corps and the equality of treatment of all races and creeds has been amply demonstrated in fact in both the Navy and Marine Corps, especially during the present Korean action."

Department of the Air Force

On 11 May 1949, the Secretary of Defense approved the Department of the Air Force policy which provides for equality of treatment and opportunity for all persons in the Air Force without regard to race, color, religion or national origin. Concurrently with the former Secretary's approval of this policy, an Air Force directive was published and given the widest possible distribution throughout the Air Force.

Immediately following the publication of this directive, the Secretary of the Air Force and the Deputy Chief of Staff, Personnel, discussed this new non-segregation policy with all the major Air Force commanders, when they were assembled at Air Force Headquarters for a general briefing on policy and tactical matters.

The following statistical information indicates the extent and progress made in the distribution of Negro personnel throughout the Air Force:

1. In January 1949, there were 167 predominantly white Air Force units containing Negro personnel, whereas by December 1951, this figure had increased to 3,145 Air Force units.

2. On 30 June 1952, there was only one Air Force unit which was predominantly manned with Negro personnel. This unit's strength was 98 officers and airmen, of whom 92 were Negro personnel. At the same time, the total number of Air Force units comprising some Negro personnel had increased to 3,466.

3. Air Force personnel, including Negroes, are assigned as required throughout the world solely on the basis of their job classification. One exception to this procedure is Iceland, the Department of State having requested that Negro personnel not be assigned to units stationed in Iceland.

Because of the policy of equality of treatment and opportunity for all Air Force personnel, it has not been deemed necessary to maintain statistics concerning the skill and assignment of any particular group.

Reports from field commanders indicate that, while there have been scattered racial incidents of small importance, there has been

Defense Transportation Assoc. Honors Sikorsky

The helicopter has been the greatest single contribution to the morale of fighting men, Admiral DeWitt C. Ramsey, USN-Ret., President of the Aircraft Industries Association, declared 23 Oct.

Admiral Ramsey spoke at a luncheon given by the National Defense Transportation Association in Washington in honor of Igor I. Sikorsky to whom it awarded its 1951 National Transportation Award in recognition of his "outstanding contribution in the design and development of the helicopter." Mr. Sikorsky is engineering manager of the Sikorsky Aircraft Division of the United Aircraft Corp.

Admiral Ramsey recounted the many areas in which the helicopter has contributed to the conduct of war. "But of all of these," he said, "its role in rescue work and in the transportation of wounded has been, in my opinion, the greatest single contribution to the morale of our fighting services in the theater of war."

Presentation of the award was made by Secretary of the Air Force Thomas K. Finletter who referred to Mr. Sikorsky as "Mr. Helicopter." The Secretary said that the era of the helicopter is really just beginning. He pointed out that medical reports show that since helicopters have been used to evacuate the wounded in Korea the death rate has dropped to 25 per thousand cases, as compared with 45 in World War II and 80 in World War I.

Col. Melvin L. Craig, president of the National Defense Transportation Association, who interrupted a vacation in Canada to attend the ceremony, recalled Mr. Sikorsky's other contributions including the design and construction of the world's first 4-engine plane in 1913.

In accepting the award, Mr. Sikorsky said that he does not believe the helicopter will ever replace other means of transportation such as the airplane and the automobile, but that it does open an entire new field. It can furnish a means of transportation, he said, under conditions were no other vehicle can operate. Automobiles need roads, boats must have water, and airplanes can not operate without landing fields, but the helicopter needs none of these facilities. He foresaw helicopters of 20, 30, and 40 passenger capacity within a few years.

Mr. Howard Adams, President of the Washington Chapter of the NDTA, presided.

a general acceptance of the non-segregation policy by all personnel of the Air Force.

We are aware of your continuing interest in the elimination of segregation in the Armed Forces. We have expressed our appreciation for the note of commendation contained in your letter of 8 July 1952.

Understandably, this summary does not include such historical developments as the inactivation of the 24th Infantry Regiment, a famous unit dating from 1866, the last remaining all-Negro unit of its size; it does not treat problems of illiteracy and educational background, of community relationships, schooling of dependents and the like. It alludes to but does not detail the small but significant increase in the number of commissioned personnel in the Navy and the slowly decreasing concentration in the messmen's branch through further inclusion in general ratings. It does not portray the magnitude and significance of the accomplishment by the Air Force of its objective of immediate, prompt, total conversion from segregation to integration.

Sincerely yours,
ANNA M. ROSENBERG

Gen. Canham 3d Army Deputy

Maj. Gen. Charles D. W. Canham, former commanding general of the 82d Airborne Division, Ft. Bragg, N. C., has arrived at Third Army headquarters, Ft. McPherson, Ga., to assume duties of Deputy Commanding General, Third Army.

General Canham succeeds Maj. Gen. W. A. Beiderlinden as Third Army Deputy Commander following the latter's assignment as senior member of the Joint Brazil-U. S. Military Commission at Rio de Janeiro, Brazil. General Beiderlinden, will take over his new post early in December.

Army Aim Is Volunteer Officer Corps by Spring

The Army this week announced liberalized rules for release of officers from active duty and it became known that an effort will be made to have the officer corps on a voluntary basis by the spring of 1953, with the exception of such critical specialists as doctors, nurses, engineers, etc.

It can be anticipated that if this objective is reached, the Army also will permit Regular officers to request separation from the Service.

Here is the text of the Army's Circular on release of officers:

1—RELEASE OF OFFICERS FROM ACTIVE DUTY BECAUSE OF HARDSHIP OR ESSENTIALITY TO NATIONAL HEALTH, SAFETY, OR INTEREST.—1. Purpose. Due to the increasing number of commissioned officers serving voluntarily in the Army and the availability of newly-commissioned officers from the Reserve Officers' Training Corps and Officer Candidate School training programs, this circular permits relaxation of the rigid restrictions which have governed the relief from active duty of commissioned officers and warrant officers of the Reserve components (see SR 135-175-4). Accordingly, increased liberality will be exercised in taking action on those applications for release from active duty submitted because of undue hardship or essentiality to national health, safety, or interest. However, for the reasons cited in paragraph 3 this relaxation cannot be applied to all officers.

2. Personnel eligible.—a. The Department of the Army will continue to control the approval of those applications submitted under paragraph 3, SR 135-175-4. Liberalized standards will be applied to all valid applications based on essentiality to national health, safety, or interest, including but not limited to—

- (1) Those based on the requirements of essential civilian enterprise.
- (2) Those from officers affected by seasonal employment whose return to their employment few months in advance of normal release dates is in the national interest.
- b. Major commanders may continue to execute final approval of applications submitted under paragraph 4, SR 135-175-4, except as otherwise indicated in those regulations. Liberalized standards will be applied to all valid applications based on individual or family hardship, including but not limited to those based on—
- (1) Dependency, to include the dependency of parents, in which serious illness or other compassionate factors are present and no other family member capable of assuming the burdens attendant thereto is available.
- (2) Essentiality to personal small business or agricultural enterprises when the release of the officer is necessary to avoid insolvency or serious loss of capital.
- (3) An opportunity to accept employment or pursue higher education when such opportunity will not be available at a later date.

3. Personnel not eligible.—The foregoing liberalization of release standards will not be applied at this time to the following:

a. Officers of the Army Medical Service, other than Medical Service Corps, who would have to be replaced by the involuntary recall of additional Reserve officers.

b. Officers detailed or assigned to the Corps of Engineers, in which a critical shortage of qualified officer personnel.

c. Officers commissioned since 25 June 1950 who have a service obligation under the Universal Military Training and Service Act, as amended, and who, if not serving as officers, would be eligible for induction.

d. Officers committed to a definite tour of duty as a result of attendance at service schools or civilian education institutions.

4. Authority.—Orders releasing officers from active duty under the provisions of this directive will cite paragraphs 3 or 4, SR 135-175-4, as authority for release.

5. Rescission.—DA Message 362035, 24 September 1952, is rescinded.

Household Goods Shipment

The Department of Defense has issued a directive (Number 4500.13), 17 Oct., concerning shipment of household goods of military personnel.

Uniform basic regulations for the shipment of household goods by commercial motor van carriers and common requirements upon such carriers are listed.

The new directive replaces Directive 4500.13, 4 April 1952.

Dept. Seeks Equal Benefits for Reserves and Regulars

The Department of Defense will include in its legislative program a Reserve Officers Personnel Act and an Armed Forces Equalization of Benefits Act, Mrs. Anna M. Rosenberg, Assistant Secretary of Defense, Manpower and Personnel, announced this week.

During the hearings on the Armed Forces Reserve Act last year, before the Civilian Components Subcommittee of the House Committee on Armed Services, the matter of promotion of reserve officers and the equalization of benefits between and among Regulars and Reserves of the Armed Forces was the subject of considerable discussion.

In view of the nature of these two subjects, the House Armed Services Committee recommended that they be submitted as separate pieces of legislation rather than to delay the passage of the Armed Forces Reserve Act. Therefore, the Department of Defense was directed to submit, prior to 1 Feb. 1952, adequate and equitable legislative recommendations.

Complying with this request, the Department of Defense, early in 1952, submitted a proposed Reserve Officers Personnel Act designed to provide equitable promotion procedures for the officers of all the Reserve components.

The Department of Defense also states that it submitted a proposed Armed Forces Equalization of Benefits Act as directed by the Congress. This proposed legislation, the Department now says, covers hospitalization, extends certain benefits of the Soldiers and Sailors Civil Relief Act, reemployment rights, survivor benefits, and provides for the equalization of benefits between and among Regulars and Reserves.

Due to pressure of business before the last Congress, this proposed legislation was not enacted. However, the Department of Defense has continued to revise and refine these two important pieces of proposed legislation with a view towards re-introducing them in the next session of Congress as matters vital to the individual Reservist and the Reserve forces as a whole.

Select Army Generals

An Army selection board, under the presidency of Lt. Gen. William B. Kean, Commanding General, Fifth Army, Chicago, Ill., is now considering records of officers for temporary and permanent promotions to brigadier general and major general.

If past practice is followed, the Army will make public the names of officers selected and approved for permanent promotion to brigadier general and major general. It is not likely that the eligibility list for temporary promotions to these ranks will be made public.

It is understood that this year, as last year, the board will place strong emphasis on youth and readiness for combat command in naming officers for temporary advancement to brigadier general. Probably one third of the officers promoted to temporary brigadier general will be 45 years of age or younger.

In addition to General Kean, other members of the board are: Maj. Gen. Roscoe B. Woodruff, Commanding General, XV Corps, Camp Polk, La.; Maj. Gen. William E. Bergin, The Adjutant General; Maj. Gen. Milton B. Halsey, Deputy Commanding General, Sixth Army; Maj. Gen. Hobart R. Gay, Commanding General, VI Corps, Camp Attabury, Ind.; and Maj. Gen. Leland S. Hobbs, Deputy Commanding General, First Army, Governors Island, N. Y.

Double EM Promotions

The Army during October will more than double the number of enlisted promotions to the top three grades.

During September, the world-wide authorization included E-6 to E-7, 1333 to E-6 and 3916 to E-5.

This month's quotas are 1000 to E-7, 6000 to E-6 and 6000 to E-5.

QM Record Receives Praise, Farley Urges Serv. Defense

A defense of the military budget in terms of national security by Francis Shackelford, Assistant Secretary of the Army, and an admonition by former Postmaster General James A. Farley that the Army should vigorously defend itself against unwarranted criticism were among the highlights last week of the annual convention of the Quartermaster Association at Atlanta, Ga.

Maj. Gen. George A. Horkan, The Quartermaster General, reviewed the accomplishments of the Army Quartermaster Corps over the past year for the 600 members of the national association, composed of present and former military personnel and civilians interested in the mission of the Corps.

Austin S. Igelheart, president of General Foods Corp., was elected president for the ensuing year, succeeding Charles P. McCormick of Baltimore, Md.

Pointing to the fact that the total defense budget for fiscal year 1953 amounts to $47 billion—about 60 per cent of the national budget—Mr. Shackelford said the cost will be cheap if the present military program is successful in preventing another world war.

Mr. Farley, who is a vice-president of the Quartermaster Association, told the convention that no one can deny that the United States has the finest Army, Navy, Air Force, and Marine Corps in the world, and that the Army Quartermaster Corps as a supply agency is surpassed by none.

"On the other hand," Mr. Farley said, "I doubt that there is another great power in the world today whose military forces are more severely criticized by some of their own people than our own.

"Sometimes I feel that our military leaders are subjected to undeserved criticism and I wonder if such harsh assessments may not be discouraging and actually result in undermined morale.

"In this connection," he added, "it is my opinion that the military Services are not doing the best by themselves when they fail to hit back at unfair criticism. If the complaints are well-founded, then the Services should move to correct what is wrong. But if the charges are untrue or unfair, the people ought to be so informed in unmistakable terms."

Discussing the criticism directed at the Army on the grounds that the Soviet Army costs less to maintain than does the United States Army, Mr. Farley said there is a fundamental difference between the supply requirements of the Soviet soldier and the American soldier. "This," he said, "is because the American is accustomed to a higher standard of living than that of the Russian." He contrasted the food, clothing, and services supplied by the Quartermaster Corps to the American soldier with those received by the Russian, and said, "When our son, brother, or nephew goes into the service, we cannot expect him to drop his living standards to a level far below anything in his experience."

But the food, clothing, and services supplied the American soldier help make him superior to his enemy, Mr. Farley said, and this is demonstrated in the fact that casualties in Korea have been about ten to one, in favor of the Americans.

Besides electing a new president, the Association members re-elected all other officers for another year, including Maj. Gen. Herman Feldman, USA Ret., former Quartermaster General, as executive vice-president and secretary and editor of the association's publication, The Quartermaster Review. Three vice-presidents were added: W. W. Kemmerer, president of the University of Houston; George Mardikian, restaurateur of San Francisco, Calif.; and Lt. Col. Joseph Geoghegan, QMC RES., Boston, Mass.

The 50th Anniversary Celebration of the Navy League of the United States will be held in Washington, D. C., 4-6 Dec., at the Statler Hotel, with former Secretary of the Navy John L. Sullivan as Chairman of the Golden Jubilee Dinner.

Col. Coe Ft. Belvoir I.G.

Assignment of Col. Edward H. Coe as Inspector General of the Engineer Center at Ft. Belvoir, Va., is announced by Lt. Gen. Lewis A. Pick, Chief of Engineers.

Colonel Coe has just completed three years of duty in the Far East Command. He served first as Commanding Officer of the Yokohama Engineer Depot. Upon formation of the Japan Logistical Command in August 1950 he was made Engineer of that Command. Prior to going overseas, Colonel Coe was for three years Assistant Chief of Engineers for Military Supply and Procurement in Washington, D. C.

Colonel and Mrs. Coe have taken up residence at Fort Belvoir.

Boost War College Quota

The Army has announced a quota of 200 officer students for the 1953-54 course of the Army War College at Carlisle Barracks, Pa. This is an increase of 50 over the quota for the current 10-month course which began last August.

The quota will be apportioned among the various branches generally on the basis of proportionate strengths. Each branch will select its students under its career management program.

The Organized Reserves will be allowed to send three students to the course, their selection to be on a competitive basis. Reservists must apply through their Military Districts.

Major Long to MARS

Maj. James A. Long, Signal Corps, has been named Army Chief of the Military Affiliate Radio System (MARS), replacing Capt. Lester A. Peterson, who has received a new assignment with Headquarters, U. S. Army, Alaska.

MARS is a joint activity of the Army and Air Force to promote the interest of amateur radio operators in Military Communications and provide an in-place system of volunteer radio nets which may be available to the Armed Forces in the event of local disaster or national emergency.

Major Long will direct the operation of Army MARS and coordinate policy with the Air Force MARS Chief, Maj. Charles C. Mack. By joint agreement, he also will serve as Secretary of the MARS Advisory Committee (representatives of the Armed Forces, the American National Red Cross, Federal Civil Defense Administration, Federal Communications Commission and the American Radio Relay League) which meets quarterly to advise the Chief Signal Officer, USAF, and the Director of Communications, USAF.

Army Loses to Pitt

Army meets Columbia today, 25 Oct., at New York City, after losing to Pitt last weekend, 22-14.

The Cadets failed to score against Pitt until the final minutes of the closing quarter when Mario DeLucia bowled across twice from the 1. Shain made both conversions good.

Next week, Army will play Virginia Military Institute at West Point.

Army Lists First October Temporary Promotions

The Army this week released the first groups of officers to receive temporary promotions during October — 48 lieutenant colonels to colonel and 102 majors to lieutenant colonel.

Next week, it is anticipated there will be a total of about 300 temporary promotions to the ranks of major and captain.

This means that there will be a total of about 450 temporary promotions this month, less than half the number made during August and September.

There is no cause to believe that the 450 rate will be increased during November:

Here are the promotions announced this week:

Army Accepts Cargo 'Copter

The Transportation Center at Ft. Eustis, Va., last week received its first Heller (H-23) utility helicopter with a carrying capacity of two or three persons or $\frac{1}{4}$ ton of cargo.

At Ft. Eustis, the craft will perform in a dual capacity as an administrative vehicle under the jurisdiction of Post G-3 (operations & training), and a medium to augment air instruction at The Transportation School.

Capt. John W. Elliott, Flight Section, Post G-3, will pilot the 'copter for administrative flights. Capt. John J. Martin, an instructor in The Transportation School's Air Branch, will pilot the 'copter for School purposes.

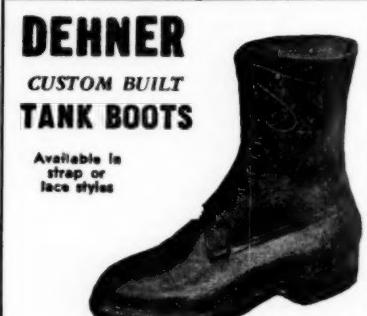

The helicopter was already tested 14 Oct. by Capt. Martin when he piloted Lt. Col. John C. Abercrombie, Senior Instructor of the School's Air Branch on a reconnaissance of sites to be utilized in the forthcoming Logistical Support Problem.

Awards From Argentina

Four officers and four enlisted men of the U. S. military mission to Argentina, which is completing its assignment, have been presented awards by that Nation. Congress must decide whether the awards can be accepted.

Gold insignia of membership in the Argentine Armored Forces went to Col. James P. Pearson, Lt. Col. Matthew Santino, Lt. Col. Thomas C. Chamberlain and Maj. Clarence Hart.

Silver insignia were presented to Sergeants Felix T. Sokulski, James Dockery, Casey Mathews and Gilberto Gomez, according to press reports from Buenos Aires.

advance planning for military public works. "The money requested for this purpose," the report said, "has been appropriated. The problem is to translate military requirements to the extent possible into concrete plans for construction. The Committee has no illusions about the difficulty of this task. Nevertheless, without it no program of rapid construction can take place with efficiency."

Excerpts from Reports

Other excerpts from the report follow: "The committee found that the central areas of weakness in the military construction program within the United States were: (a) Lack of advance planning, (b) failures in standardization of repetitive-type structures, (c) lapses in attention to austerity standards, (d) too much use of the negotiated and cost-plus-fixed-fee-types contract for new construction, (e) lack of control in the conduct of certain CPFF contracts, (f) too frequent use of the change order and negotiated supplemental agreement, and (g) the uneconomic and violent peaking of obligations in the last month of the fiscal year for both year end and no-year funds.

"The committee found that close congressional attention in these areas coupled with the cooperation of the services can achieve constructive results. As an example the committee can report savings in the amount of $72 million this year as a direct result of its own studies.

"One phase of the planning and design problem presents a great opportunity for more efficient and economic construction. This concerns the standardization of those types of buildings which are found throughout all of the services. There is no reason why this goal cannot be reached immediately for the familiar structures found on all military and naval stations. Standardization for such buildings as barracks, mess halls, warehouses, BOQ's and the like should almost assume the proportions of a condition precedent for future appropriations. Perhaps a small degree of variation may be justified to accommodate certain different types of problems arising in each of the three services. However, within each service differences should certainly be minimized and even as between services, standardization and not variety should be the goal.

"In addition to increased standardization a great deal of room for improvement exists in the fixing of base facility requirements. There is no doubt but that improvement in this regard will result in a substantial increase in construction efficiency for bases to be built both in this country and abroad.

Haste Boosts Costs

"The establishment of unrealistic completion periods for construction jobs have caused great confusion and waste in the past. For new construction this has caused excessive use of the negotiated and cost-plus-fixed-fee contract. It is impossible to set down a definite time schedule for military construction and eliminate all need for speed. This must of course be governed by the all-important needs of national defense in any given circumstance. However, it must always be kept in mind that great projects cannot be built in haste without a considerable increase in cost and great chance for confusion, inefficiency, and waste. In assigning completion dates these two factors must be carefully balanced against each other. Lack of careful judgment in this regard has proven most costly. The committee has been shown cases where less haste at the planning, design, and contracting stages would have produced not only a better but a quicker job. In view of the dangers involved at least the existing legal and administrative restrictions on the use of CPFF and negotiated-type contract should be maintained. The committee has one further suggestion in this regard. A comparison of a great number of rehabilitation projects indicates that if properly controlled the CPFF lends itself naturally to this type of work, and it is recommended that the matter be studied to see whether under proper restrictions a more efficient rehabilitation job might be expected from use of CPFF procedure, rather than other contract types.

"The committee has noted that the experienced personnel of the Corps of Engineers is spread thin over the great volume of critical military construction. It recommends that more experienced officers be assigned to this sensitive work area. The high ratio of high ranking and more experienced officers in the corps civil-functions work has been noted.

"Throughout the services there has existed a feeling of compulsion to spend all available money of either the year-end or no-year variety before the end of the fiscal year regardless of the interests of economy. This has resulted in a rush during the month of June to obligate funds and has created a most inefficient peaking of funds in that one month. This attitude must be corrected at once and steps must be taken to develop specific safeguards against the evil. One remedy surely exists in a greater refinement of the construction program to the point that the monthly rate of obligation could be plotted and staggered in more orderly detail.

"The armed services officials have sometimes been less than candid and have failed to make complete disclosure of over-all construction needs and programs to the committee. The foot-in-the-door technique has been used to get initial appropriations which later had to be supplemented in order to obtain full utilization of facilities. The committee feels that it is entitled to complete candor and to know the full projected program with respect to over-all construction plans at the time of initial requests for partial funding."

Ft. Benning Aide-de-Camp

Lt. Elmer Graham has assumed duties as aide-de-camp to Brig. Gen. Guy S. Meloy, Jr., The Infantry School's assistant commandant.

Guide words for today—

"Our country's honor calls upon us for a vigorous and manly exertion; and if we now shamefully fail, we shall become infamous to the whole world."

—GEORGE WASHINGTON

The selection of a new President is a time for new hope and renewed determination. The President-elect carries with him the high hopes of Americans for a new era of peace and prosperity under great leadership.

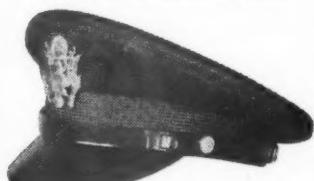

The problems are difficult, the decisions grave, the crises urgent. "Blood, sweat, toil and tears" are as necessary now in the cause of peace as they were in the cause of war. But with faith, freedom and "manly exertion" on the part of all citizens, the nation can again move forward to her great destiny, and help achieve the lasting peace to which all the world's people aspire.

Navy Wins Five Awards

Five Navy officers will receive awards from Secretary of the Treasury John W. Snyder in ceremonies at the Norfolk Naval Shipyard, Portsmouth, Va., on 27 Oct.

For the first time since World War II, the Secretary will personally present Minute Man Flags awarded to organizations enrolling more than 90 per cent of their employees in the payroll savings plan.

Flags will be presented to Comdr. W. C. Taylor, CO of the Naval Ammunition Depot, St. Julian's Creek, and to Capt. C. C. Hollner, CO of the Naval Amphibious Base, Little Creek, Va.

Special honor awards will be presented to Rear Adm. John W. Wood, CO of the Naval Supply Center, Norfolk; Rear Adm. David H. Clark, Commander of the Shipyard; and to Rear Adm. Ralph O. Davis, Commandant of the Fifth Naval District. The two commands have almost 100 per cent enrollment in the payroll savings plan, and the District had an average enrollment of 84.9 per cent. Admiral Davis' award will be accepted by Rear Adm. T. B. Brittain, Acting Commandant and Commander of the Norfolk Naval Base.

The Navy leads all agencies of the Federal Government in the U. S. Defense Bond program.

Marine Retirements

The Marine Corps has announced the retirement of fourteen officers.

Three were placed on the permanent disability retired list: Capt. Lincoln P. Davis, Capt. John P. Grando, and 1st Lt. James T. Birmingham, USMCR.

Five were placed on the temporary disability retired list: Maj. Francis E. Pierce, Jr., 1st Lt. Wallace E. Dibble, Jr., USMCR, 1st Lt. Charles A. Filley, USMCR, 2d Lt. Baron K. Pressley, USMCR, and CWO Aubrey D. Taylor.

Maj. Eugene H. Odom was placed on the retired list after completing more than thirty years of service.

Five Reserve officers were placed on the Honorary Retired List: Capt. James E. Adamson, and First Lieutenants Hooper Jones, Edmund P. Lawrence, Robert L. Shortley and Charles J. Maxey.

Capt. John C. Wolpers, USMCR, was transferred to the Reserve Retired List.

SecNav Presents Award

The Secretary of the Navy's Distinguished Public Service Award was presented to Mr. B. Brewster Jennings, President of the Socony-Vacuum Company, Inc., of New York, at ceremonies in the Secretary's office at the Pentagon on 21 Oct.

Flag Changes

Rear Adm. Daniel V. Gallery, Jr., Commander, Hunter-Killer Force, Atlantic Fleet, was named this week to be Chief of Naval Air Reserve Training, Naval Air Station, Pensacola.

Admiral Gallery's assignment was one of five flag shifts announced by the Navy. Others were:

Rear Adm. Harry R. Thurber to Naval Operations. He is currently serving with the Atlantic Fleet Battleship Division.

Rear Adm. William K. Mendenhall, Deputy Chief of the Armed Forces Special Weapons Project, Washington, D. C., to new duty with Destroyer Flotilla, Pacific.

Rear Adm. Frank T. Ward, Jr., will succeed Admiral Gallery as Commander, Hunter-Killer Force, Atlantic. He is currently serving with the Carrier Division, Atlantic.

Rear Adm. Frederick S. Withington, Director of the Atomic Energy Division, Naval Operations, will go to the Amphibious Group, Pacific.

New Staff at MCR Depot

Col. Richard P. Ross, Jr., USMC, recently became Chief of Staff of the Marine Corps Recruit Depot, San Diego, succeeding Col. George N. Carroll who returned to his former duty as Assistant C/S, G-4.

Col. Kenneth A. Jorgenson became Assistant C/S, G-3, succeeding Col. Wallace M. Nelson, who relieved Colonel Ross as Depot Inspector.

Dedicate Marine Hall

Ellis Hall, a new addition to the Marine Corps Educational Center, Marine Corps Schools, Quantico, Va., was dedicated in a ceremony at Quantico on 14 Oct.

The building, which is to be used to train students in amphibious warfare techniques by the use of scale models and other visual aids, was named for Lt. Col. Earl Ellis, USMC, one of the earliest advocates of amphibious landings. Colonel Ellis died in 1923 while serving as an intelligence officer in the Japanese Palau Islands.

Present for the ceremony were General Lemuel C. Shepherd, Jr., Commandant of the Marine Corps; Mrs. Robert H. Dunlap, widow of Brig. Gen. Robert H. Dunlap and personal friend of Colonel Ellis, and Lt. Gen. Clifton B. Cates, Commandant of the Schools.

Comdr. Charles D. Beatty delivered the invocation, and the speakers were introduced by Brig. Gen. Edward W. Snedeker, Director of the Marine Corps Educational Center. At the close of the ceremony, Mrs. Dunlap unveiled a portrait of Colonel Ellis. The benediction was given by Lt. Comdr. Edwin F. Carr.

CO of MAG-13

Col. Edwin P. Pennebaker recently assumed command of Marine Air Group 13 at the Marine Corps Air Station, Kaneohe Bay, T. H. He succeeded Col. John H. Earle who will report to Washington, D. C. for a new assignment.

Col. James L. Neefus is the new executive officer of MAG-13, relieving Lt. Col. William M. Ritchey, who became the Group tactical officer.

To Barber's Point Command

Col. Donald E. Huey, USMC, former Commanding Officer of Marine Air Group 25 at El Toro, Calif., has assumed command of Marine Air Logistics Squadron 152 at Barber's Point, Oahu, T. H., succeeding Col. Millard T. Shepherd who will go to El Toro to take over the command vacated by Colonel Huey.

Adm. Hill Succeeds Adm. Jacobs as USN Home Gov.

Almost 50 years of distinguished Naval service came to a close on 22 Oct., when Vice Adm. Randall Jacobs, USN-Ret., was relieved as Governor of the U. S. Naval Home, 29th and Gray's Ferry Road, Philadelphia, by Admiral Harry W. Hill, USN-Ret.

A d m i r a l Jacobs, U S N A '03, who has been governor of the Home since 1946, plans to retire at his boyhood home of Danville, Pa. From 1941 to 1944, Admiral Jacobs was Chief of Naval Personnel.

Adm. Hill

A p p r o x i-

mately 300 of the Home's residents, whose average age is 68, were present at the ceremony. The 126-year-old Home is maintained as a haven for retired or disabled Navy, Marine and Coast Guard personnel.

Admiral Hill, who began his Naval career 45 years ago when he entered the Naval Academy as a Congressional appointee from Oakland, Calif., in September became commander of one of Navy's first amphibian groups and served throughout the remainder of the war as an amphibian commander, seeing action in the invasion and occupation of Tarawa, Apamama, Majuro, Eniwetok, Saipan, Tinian, Iwo Jima and Okinawa.

With the end of World War II, Admiral Hill became one of the Service's foremost educators, becoming the first post war commandant of the Army-Navy Staff College. Later when that institution was reorganized and became the National War College he served as its head for three years. In 1949 he was assigned as Superintendent of the U. S. Naval Academy.

Relieved as Superintendent this past summer by Admiral C. Turner Joy, USN, former Korean peace negotiator, Admiral Hill had leave on the West coast before coming to Philadelphia to take over his new assignment. Admiral and Mrs. Hill will reside at the Governor's Quarters, Naval Home.

'Mothball' Dependent Ship

The 18,000-ton SS La Guardia, after three years service as a passenger ship for military dependents, is being retired from active service and will join the James River Reserve Fleet near Norfolk, Va.

Military Sea Transport Service officials say the vessel is being sent to the "mothball fleet" because accommodations for only 606 passengers make uneconomical her continued service as a transport for dependents.

Preview TV's 'Victory at Sea'

Officials of the U. S. Navy, Radio Corporation of America and the National Broadcasting Company attended a preview of two episodes of the television film series, "Victory at Sea," 16 Oct. at the U. S. Naval Air Station, Anacostia, D. C. The 26-program series, to be telecast over the NBC-TV network beginning 26 Oct. has been prepared by RCA-NBC in cooperation with the U. S. Navy.

The special showing of the first two episodes was arranged for Admiral William M. Fechteler, Chief of Naval Operations. Heading the visiting RCA-NBC officials were Brig. Gen. David Sarnoff, Chairman of the Board of RCA, and Joseph H. McConnell, President of NBC.

In introducing the two episodes, "Design for War" and "The Pacific Boils Over," Robert W. Sarnoff, vice president in charge of the Television Film Division of NBC, described "Victory at Sea" as the most complete picture of sea power ever presented.

In addition to Admiral Fechteler, Naval officials who attended the preview included the Assistant Secretary of the Navy for Air John F. Floberg and Mrs. Floberg; the Assistant Secretary of the Navy and Mrs. Herbert Askins; General L. C. Shepherd, Jr., Commandant of the U. S. Marine Corps, and Mrs. Shepherd; Vice Admiral F. S. Low, Deputy Chief of Naval Operations, and Mrs. Low; and Capt. Walter Karig, Special Assistant to the Secretary of the Navy and technical advisor for "Victory at Sea."

Following the preview, the RCA and

Hours of Flight Training: 360

Hundreds of downed American airmen have known the thrill of seeing a helicopter appear suddenly from nowhere...to pluck them from treacherous seas, or hostile terrain.

American Machine & Foundry Company produces the twin rotors that give these flying "angels of mercy" their wings. AMF's engineering research and inventiveness are helping to pave the way for progress in the air, as well as on land, on the sea, and under the sea.

AMF is proud of its role in American industry—proud to be one of thousands of companies doing their part to keep America militarily on guard.

Above figures are given with due regard to security.

Top Performance Marks SAC Bomb Competition

So precise was the bombing and so accurate the navigation during the fourth annual SAC Bombing and Navigation Competition at Davis-Monthan Air Force Base, Ariz. that when the last bomb dropped was scored no single winning wing could be named.

Two bombardment wings — the 93d from Castle AFB, Merced, Calif., and the 97th from Biggs AFB, El Paso, Tex.—tied for first place only a few points ahead of the rest of the field. They will be forced to share possession of the coveted Fairchild trophy, the nation's top award for excellence in strategic bombardment.

While the wings were bunched in a dead heat, Maj. William Seith's B-29 bomber crew from the 2d Bomb Wing, Hunter AFB, Ga., ran away with all honors offered individual crews, placing first in bombardment navigation and combined navigation and bombardment.

Maj. Gen. Thomas S. Power, Deputy Commander of SAC, presented the Fairchild trophy to Brig. Gen. John Ryan commanding officer 93d Wing.

General Ryan also accepted a trophy won by the 97th for the best bombing by wings. Brig. Gen. William H. Blanchard, commander 509th Wing, Carswell AFB, N. Mex., received the award for best navigation by a wing and Maj. Seith walked off with his arms full of the three top crew trophies.

Since the top two crews of each SAC combat wing were to be pitted against each other competition officials had taken every precaution to reduce the possibility of a tie. Specific corners of buildings and in one instance the top of a television antenna were selected as aiming points from which the simulated bomb drops were measured.

Even so the results were so uniformly excellent that two wings were deadlocked at the top and others were separated in standings by only a few points.

The 509th Wing and the 2d Wing placed third and fourth in the Fairchild trophy competition. In bombing by wings the 97th was trailed by the 93d and the 43d from Davis Monthan AFB, and in navigation by wings the 509th edged out the 2d and the 92d, a B-36 wing from Fairchild AFB Wash.

In individual crew competition Maj. Charles E. Barnett's 93d Wing crew trailed Maj. Seith in combined navigation and bombing field followed by Capt. Norman McClean's 509th crew.

In bombing by crews Major Barnett and Maj. Quentin L. Hancock of the 43d Wing and in crew navigation it was Major Smith, Major McClean and Lieutenant Colonel Milton Green of the 92d who commanded the top three crews.

Standings follow:

Bombing by wing — 97th, 93d, 43d, 509th, 7th, 2d, 303d, 92d, 11th, 301st, 22d, 308th, 106th, 68th, RAF, 310th, 6th, 9th, 376th, 44th.

Navigation by wings — 509th, 2d, 92d, 93d, 97th, 106th, 22d, 11th, RAF, 310th, 301st, 308th, 6th, 303d, 68th, 9th, 7th, 43d, 376th, 44th.

Standings for Fairchild trophy — 93d and 97th tied for first, 509th, 2d, 43d, 92d, 7th, 303d, 11th, 22d, 301st, 308th, 106th, 68th, RAF, 310th, 6th, 9th, 376th, 44th.

CAP Membership Drive

The Civil Air Patrol, official auxiliary of the Air Force, this week began an all-out, nation-wide drive for a total of 50,000 senior members—Instructors, pilots, observers, communications specialists, etc. Maj. Gen. Lucas V. Beau, USAF, National Commander of CAP, urged Air Force reservists, veterans and active-duty airmen and officers to think seriously of affiliating with the CAP program as instructors."

Redesignation of the 6580th Missile Test Wing at Holloman AFB, Alamogordo, N. Mex., as the Holloman Air Development Center is announced by Lt. Gen. Earle E. Partridge, Commanding General of the Air Force's Research and Development Command.

In supporting the mission of the Air Research and Development Command, The Holloman Air Development Center will accomplish tests, and research and development related to tests, on pilotless aircraft, guided missiles and allied equipment. The new Center will also conduct research and development in space biology; support research programs in guided missiles, electronics, atmospherics, physiology and psychology; and provide facilities for contractors and other government agencies to conduct research and development operations.

Holloman Air Development Center which has a 38-by-64 mile test range for "short" range testing of rockets and guided missiles, has been the scene of such undertakings as the recently announced 40-mile rocket flights of mammals, undertaken by ARDC's Aero Medical Laboratory personnel to obtain new data on the possible effects on the human body of upper air flight.

Col. Don R. Ostrander is commanding officer of the Center. Units assigned to the Center are: 6580th Medical Group, 6580th Air Base Group, 6580th M & S Group, 6580th Missile Test Group, 6580th Installations Group.

With the establishment of the Holloman Air Development Center, the Air Research and Development Command now has nine Centers located throughout the nation accomplishing the Air Force's integrated research and development program. The other eight are:

The Air Force Special Weapons Center, Kirtland AFB, Albuquerque, N. M., which assists the Atomic Energy Commission in the development testing of atomic weapons and testing of other special weapons in the field of Air Force interest and responsibility.

The former Air Development Center, Griffiss AFB, Rome, N. Y., where experimental work on electronic equipment is performed.

The Air Force Cambridge Research Center at Cambridge, Mass., where scientists and technicians study the existence and behavior of physical phenomena occurring on the earth and in the atmosphere and their effect on Air Force operations.

The Air Force Missile Test Center at Patrick AFB, Cocoa, Fla., where missiles and rockets are tested on a long-range proving ground extending to Puerto Rico.

The Wright Air Development Center at Wright-Patterson AFB, Dayton, Ohio, where research, development, and tests of USAF materiel, including guided missiles, aircraft, associated equipment, components and systems are accomplished.

The Arnold Engineering Development Center at Tullahoma, Tenn., now in the process of construction, where unsurpassed test facilities will be available for developing and evaluating supersonic aircraft and missiles, and their propulsion systems.

The Air Force Flight Test Center at Edwards AFB, Edwards, Calif., where flight tests of aircraft, power plants, components, and allied equipment take place.

O.K. For FlyTAF Emblem

Air Force Headquarters in Washington has approved an organizational emblem for Flying Training Air Force.

The emblem was designed basically by Capt. Homer B. Stillwell of Goodfellow AFB, Tex., whose entry was one of more than 150 submitted by military personnel at FlyTAF bases in a command-wide contest last fall.

The seal incorporates the torch of knowledge from the Air Training Command seal with gold wings arching upward from its sides symbolizing flying training. The torch and wings are on a blue shield. Below the shield is a white scroll with the Latin inscription "multarum rerum peritus" (versed in many things).

The emblem depicts FlyTAF's mission of teaching all phases of Air Force flying training.

Though Air Force regulations prohibit wearing the insignia as a uniform shoulder patch, it will be used on stationery, flags, and elsewhere throughout the FlyTAF command, except on aircraft.

A board of five judges from FlyTAF headquarters narrowed last year's contest entries down to four sketches. Maj. Gen. Warren R. Carter, first FlyTAF commander, selected Captain Stillwell's entry.

Air Force headquarters made minor changes in Capt. Stillwell's design to conform with Air Force regulations.

Industrial College

Instruction at the College proceeds at a graduate level through lectures and seminars by leading authorities in various fields of economic mobilization, the study and preparation of written reports on individual and committee problems, group discussions, and oral presentations. In addition, the students make field trips for personal observation of the organization and operation of industrial, research and military establishments.

The present facilities of the College limit the resident ten-month course to fewer than 150 students each year. This number is far from sufficient to provide the informed leaders the nation requires in the field of economic mobilization. Consequently, it was decided to take a condensed, 40-hour version of the resident course to the industrial and manufacturing centers of the United States. Two lecture teams of six officers each from the College's Civilian Reserve Instruction Branch present the two-week Field Economic Mobilization Course, first introduced at New Orleans in 1947 and subsequently held 73 times in 51 cities throughout the country.

The primary purpose of the field courses is the furnishing of information to reserve officers on the complex processes involved in economic mobilization so that they would be of greater value to the nation if recalled to active duty. However, because of the demand for and the desirability of participation in the courses by non-reserve civilian leaders of the communities visited, attendance was broadened to include them as well. Classes total approximately 300, divided about equally between reserve officers of all branches of the Armed Forces and key civilians from business, industry, education, labor, government and other fields. The sponsoring organization in the local area is responsible for civilian attendance.

Going even further, the College, in 1949, offered a correspondence course on the principles of economic mobilization and related factors. Handled by the Correspondence Study Branch, this course is offered to both regular and reserve officers through the extension facilities of the military services and to civilians by direct application to the College. Since the correspondence course was begun, enrollment has remained at about 2,300 students and more than 1,100 have received their certificates of satisfactory completion.

Through its three branches, then, those handling the resident course, the field courses and the correspondence course, the Industrial College of the Armed Forces is responsible for a considerable advancement in the knowledge and understanding of the nation's economic mobilization problems, not only on the part of regular and reserve officers of the military establishment but of thousands of key civilian leaders as well.

Although the College holds basic principles, factors and procedures in sight at all times, it also keeps abreast of the latest developments. Its program is adjusted to meet changes in technology and the potential power of nations, shifts in political and ideological alliances. Thus insuring that its graduates are well and currently informed, the Industrial College of the Armed Forces is contributing substantially to the nation's security.

Flight Service Chief

Col. Harry J. Bullis has assumed command of Flight Service, a subordinate unit of the Military Air Transport Service, with Headquarters located in Washington, D. C.

Lt. Col. Elmer F. Estrumse, who has been in command of the unit since April of this year, resumed his duties of Deputy Commander.

Colonel Bullis came to his new post from Headquarters MATS where he was Chief of the Air Safety Branch. Prior to his assignment to HQ. MATS, he served two years with the Headquarters Newfoundland Base Command, Pepperrell AFB, Newfoundland.

Colonel and Mrs. Bullis, the former Miss Kathryn L. Derby of Portland, Mich., and their two children Christopher J. and Jacqueline Kay reside at 5304 Summit Drive, Hillcrest Heights, Md.

AF Supply Director

Maj. Gen. George W. Munday, USAF, Assistant Deputy Commanding General of the Air Materiel Command, Wright-Patterson AFB, Ohio, has been named Director of Supply and Services at USAF Headquarters.

Stationed at AMC headquarters since graduation from the National War College in 1948, he headed AMC's vast supply, maintenance and services organization before he was appointed to the Assistant Deputy Commander's post last June.

NSLI Dividend

The Veterans' Administration is now making payment of the Third Dividend on National Service Life Insurance policies.

All payments of the Second Dividend were completed last July, with the exception of a few "problem" accounts. The VA explained that these accounts were largely those of men now in the service for whom the VA has no forwarding address.

Men who applied for a waiver before the 1951 policy year began were not eligible for the Second Dividend.

Manpower Study. The Department of Defense and the Nation are fortunate in securing the services of Brig. Gen. David Sarnoff to head the new Manpower Commission. Certainly, Senator Lyndon Johnson (D.-Tex.), Chairman of the Preparedness Subcommittee, at whose instance the study is to be made, can feel confident that every phase of this vast subject will be thoroughly and impartially explored.

The subject is a most complex and vital one. Tables of organization differ among the various Services and each feels that it is making the best use of its available manpower. Yet current conditions are such that both our military efficiency and the smooth operation of our industrial machinery for war and peace output demand that we utilize our human resources to the utmost.

General Sarnoff comes to this task prepared by a long and distinguished career, both in civilian and military life. As President and now Chairman of the Board of the Radio Corporation of America, he is noted for the accomplishment of building and maintaining one of the largest and most important organizations in the world. In this endeavor he has demonstrated the highest efficiency in handling a manpower problem involving all classes of personnel from factory workers to research scientists and executives. His military experience goes back many years. In 1924 he was appointed a lieutenant colonel in the Signal Corps Reserve. In 1931 he was advanced to the rank of colonel and in 1944 was appointed a brigadier general. In World War II, he served as special Consultant on Communications to General of the Army Dwight D. Eisenhower at SHAEF in Europe. During the war, he was awarded the Army's Legion of Merit and at the end of the war President Truman presented him The Medal for Merit for services of "inestimable value to the war effort."

The Services look forward with deep interest to the results of the study General Sarnoff is to conduct, for it can be most far reaching and have a lasting effect upon the National Defense structure.

Out for Blood. The House Subcommittee on Military Public Works Appropriations reported this week that it is not satisfied with the "few isolated instances" of disciplinary action against officers who have not been careful in the use of public funds. The Subcommittee accordingly instructed each of the Services to make a complete report on all such disciplinary measures taken since 1 July 1950. This action cannot be viewed otherwise than as a committee demand that more officers be punished for lack of "cost consciousness."

In light of the Cost Consciousness campaigns being conducted in all of the Armed Services and the fact that ratings on this subject are now part of the record of all officers so that their promotions and future assignments depend upon maintaining high standards, this pointed demand for more disciplinary measures is unwarranted. Certainly, it constitutes an interference with the Department's administration and the system of military justice. There is no excuse to call for more punishment unless it can be shown that offenses are being committed and are being condoned. It appears that the members of Congress who not so long ago passed a bill to minimize "command influence" in military justice are now seeking to inject "Congressional influence."

It must be admitted that the three members of this Subcommittee are quite "Cost Conscious" themselves. Not one of them voted for the Service

Promotion to Colonel

Editor, THE JOURNAL:

The account given by Lieutenant Colonel G. S. in his letter, entitled "Promotions to Colonel," in the 27 Sept. issue of THE JOURNAL is very heart-rending. He bewails the fact that his seniors in age, experience and service were promoted over him.

He indicates that he has had superior efficiency ratings for the past 12 years. That 12 years is probably just about his total commissioned service. He forgets that there are many, many officers with superior efficiency ratings and with 16 to 18 years of service who were not even within the zone of consideration. At least he was in the zone of consideration, which was primarily based on the attainment of a temporary lieutenant colonel's rank prior to 31 Dec. 1944. There were a few exceptions picked from temporary lieutenant colonels with dates of rank in 1945; these were the so-called "five-percenters."

It's about time that the Army gets back on an even keel. Accent on youth is fine but it can be carried to an extreme! You will never convince me that a Lt Col with 12 years of service, the majority of which have been spent on staff or aide assignments, is better qualified to be a regimental commander than a Lt Col with 18 years of service, who has had considerable troop duty in addition to staff duty. We grant that there are a few budding geniuses, who are potential Bradleys and Eisenhowers, and who should be promoted rapidly. However, they will not come close to 5% or even 1% of the commissioned strength of the Army. The present system of choosing "five percenters" should be discontinued, and an impartial board of general officers should be appointed to make these selections. The records of all officers of all components should be screened by this board and the real "five percenters" nominated for promotion.

I am glad to see indications that the pendulum is beginning to swing back. The recent retention of 60% of the permanent colonels about to be retired after five years in grade is a step in the right direction. Even though the zone of consideration for the last list of eligibles to promotion to temporary colonel was still based on the erroneous youth concept of temporary rank, it is heartening to note that choice within the zone of consideration was made with some regard to age, experience, and length and type of service. Maybe we will finally get to the point where juniors in permanent rank will not be in a position to submit efficiency reports on their seniors in permanent rank.

My advice to Lt Col GS and his "contemporaries" is this: don't be disappointed; there is nothing the matter with your careers that a little age, experience, and troop duty will not cure.

Lt. Col. GS (Inf.).

Light on Retired Taxes

Editor, THE JOURNAL:

I wish to make reply to the letter: "Taxing the Retired," as it is lacking in some pertinent considerations. This letter appeared in THE JOURNAL under date of 4 Oct. 1952 and signed Taxpayer.

To state that the tax exemption for those retired for physical disability is discriminatory in pay legislation is not altogether true. During the war many officers were forced to the retired list because they could not meet physical requirements for promotion. They were retained on active duty in their permanent-rank status while their contemporaries enjoyed promotions in several advanced grades with corresponding increase in pay. In general, their present retired pay is computed for the highest temporary rank attained.

I believe it true to say that virtually all the officers retired for physical disability, and who gained no pay-increase promotion for that reason, would have been advanced in rank with their contemporaries. For this group of officers the tax exemption only partially balances the retired pay they would receive if they had not been forced to retired status because of their physical disability. Also, many of us lost the greater part of our terminal leave pay because of this forced retirement and retention on active duty.

Some officers perhaps did gain their temporary promotions and were subsequently retired with entitlement to tax exemption. If such cases exist it is not a gesture of equity to excoriate in terms of generality a pecuniary benefit deserved in some categories.

Drastic Cut in Budget Foreseen

SECRETARY of Defense Robert A. Lovett reported this week that intensive top-level review of the fiscal '54 defense budget will begin at the Pentagon on Monday, 27 Oct. Concurrently, there was speculation that next year's military funds will be slashed by at least $5 billion and possibly even as much as $10 billion from original '53 requests.

The President's budget request to Congress for the current fiscal year was $51.9 billion. Congress cut this to $46.9 billion.

At a press conference this week, Secretary Lovett declined to discuss monetary aspects of the forthcoming budget, but did state that in his opinion the '54 budget would be lower than that of '53. He said he could not say how much.

Mr. Lovett said the staff of the Comptroller's office has completed a mark-up of the budget with assistance of officials from the Bureau of the Budget. Recommendations are made to Secretary Lovett and the Services are permitted to appeal the recommendations contained in the mark-up. This is what begins next week.

After the Secretary of Defense hears all sides and a definite budget is formulated, probably early in December, the next step is for this budget draft to be sent to the Bureau of the Budget. Normally, the Bureau of the Budget reduces the amount asked by the Defense Department and then the budget is sent to the President for transmittal to Capitol Hill. The schedule calls for the defense budget to reach Congress by mid-January.

Mr. Lovett was asked to describe the work done on the budget so far and permitted reporters to quote his one-word comment: "Ouch!" He was asked

"is that a negative or positive ouch?" and replied that it is always negative.

Secretary Lovett also permitted direct quotation of an observation that the budget guidance to the Services has been to prepare estimates on the basis of "moderate necessary austerity."

At the present time, the budget mark-ups, said Secretary Lovett, are "classified." He was asked if he had the authority to declassify this information and answered by saying that the figures will be declassified at a later date. He did not specify when this later date would be.

However, conjecture is growing that the defense budget figures may become known earlier than usual this year.

It is believed that when this information is revealed the '54 budget will be less, by many billions of dollars, than the '53 requests and probably considerably less also than the actual funds approved by Congress.

As regards manpower implications, Secretary Lovett has said publicly that he anticipates the man strength of the '54 budget will be about the same as that in the '53 budget, 3,700,000 men and women. Although the increase is going to be relatively small because of a strict manpower conservation program. It is known that Air Force strength will be increased somewhat in the next fiscal year as combat wings are increased. This undoubtedly will mean a reduction of strength in the other Services.

The situation in Korea will, of course, have an important bearing on the final budget requests, but as of the moment no Pentagon official would deny that the '54 budget drafts call for reductions computed in the billions of dollars.

Prepare for NATO's Paris Meeting

THE working members of the Standing Group of the North Atlantic Treaty Organization's Military Committee are leaving Washington this weekend for Paris, there to confer with the resident North Atlantic Council on agenda for the Minister's meeting on 15 Dec.

The "working member" designation, to use the term employed by the Council, on this occasion is made up of Lt. Gen. Paul Ely of France, Air Chief Marshal Sir William Elliot of the United Kingdom (both of whom deal habitually with General Bradley in the Standing Group's normal Washington meetings but yield to their superiors at the full committee assemblies) and Vice Adm. Arthur C. Davis, USN, deputy to General Bradley. When their preliminary work is completed, they will go back to Washington, returning to Paris in early December with General Bradley, for the considerable Military Committee work necessary in advance of the Council meeting.

That assembly of 15 Dec., which with good fortune will be one of great moment, is presently resting on uneasy foundations. It must be recognized that NATO's future, and indeed the defense of the West as planned, will be determined by events taking place between now and 15 Dec. Nor is the reference this time to the American presidential elections, although they are a factor. Rather one must keep in mind the grave difficulty which, by reason of threatened defection of France's powerful Radical Socialist party, Premier Pinay now faces in carrying out his courageous foreign policy. For unless France's National Assembly supports the European Defense Community treaty (on which the European Army rests) NATO's most confident planning is in a bad state.

M. Pinay has been working with a narrow majority on this and several other parts of his program. He knew in advance that the Communists would oppose, and that deGaulle, with his singular blindness to realities, would on such points be allied with the Communists. Pinay also knew that the professional old-time appeasers who hang on in French politics would oppose him. He could not have expected such a blow as that from Herriot, speaker of the Assembly and leader of the normally reliable Radical group, who now wishes amendments to the six-power compact on which the Assembly (and the parliaments of the five other states — West Germany, Italy, Belgium, Netherlands, Luxembourg) must vote in coming weeks. If Herriot swings most of his party by his belated anxieties over the unforgettable German threat, a majority for Pinay will be difficult to assemble from the other votes in his coalition.

If we show too much impatience with this sobering threat to NATO planning, Frenchmen with long memories may be tempted to recall certain events in Washington three decades ago, when a League of Nations compact was flattened out by opposition in the American Senate, with long-range results. The parallel is suggestive, for just as the old League, now dead, was the creation primarily of an American statesman who could not later control his own legislature, so the proposed European Defense Community is the child of French statesmen who in their turn find their own parliament turning against them.

It is a bit late to mourn over spilled milk. Yet the fact is that, besides ineradicable French fears of a revived Teuton fury (and a Teuton strength) encountered three times in 70 years, there is measurable French irritation with recent official American expressions about French policy and performance. Some of our official criticisms had ample foundation, but their expression has not always been of a sort to make friends and influence people our way.

While the political air in Paris is filled with smoke on NATO matters, the western Mediterranean will be offering a better picture of operational activities (and incidentally one which M. Pinay may find it desirable to invite to attention by French legislators). For on 10 Nov. Admiral Robert B. Carney, as Commander-in-Chief of General Ridgway's Southern European sector (and, more especially, as naval commander of that sector) will be conducting Exercise Long-step. It will afford coordinated command and communications practice to the Sixth U. S. Fleet, which remains much the largest NATO component in the Mediterranean, as well as to naval and air forces of five Allied nations. These last are French, Italian, Greek and Turkish.

UN Opens Debate on Korea

IN a surprise move the Political and Security Committee of the General Assembly of the United Nations unanimously voted to give the Korean question top priority on its agenda. Secretary of State Dean Acheson opened debate by calling for the adoption of a resolution urging Communist China and the North Korean Reds to accept truce proposals of the United Nations negotiators at the Panmunjom truce conference.

The committee in another unexpected decision agreed to place the controversies between France and Tunisia and Morocco in second and third place on the agenda. On this issue the United States joined the Arab, Asian and Soviet blocs in overriding the objections of France, Great Britain, and all but one of the Western European countries. Norway, alone of the Western European members of the United Nations, abstained from voting, while the others were recorded against immediate consideration of these disputes. The roll call was 34 to 20, with six abstentions.

French delegates were deeply disappointed at the stand of the United States, as they were reported to have had assurances that this country would support postponement of consideration by the United Nations of complaints against the French administration of these protectorates. It was feared that the position taken by the United States might encourage the opposition to Premier Antoine Pinay, and possibly strain relations between this country and France.

In view of the imminence of the United States presidential election there was general expectation that debate on the more controversial issues before the United Nations might be deferred until the character of the new administration was determined. Secretary-General Trygve Lie had recommended an order of business that would have postponed action on the Korean and African questions. However, Mr. Acheson asked that the Korean issue be first taken up, and made no objection when Russia agreed to the proposal of the anti-colonial bloc for early consideration of the Tunisian and Moroccan disputes.

While there will undoubtedly be protracted debate on Korean truce negotiations, which have all but collapsed, the non-Communist nations will resist any move to transfer the armistice talks from Korea to the General Assembly in New York. This was made clear this week by Foreign Minister Richard G. Casey of Australia, who told the Assembly that his country had complete confidence in the United Nations negotiators and would insist that truce proceedings remain on the military level in Korea. Mr. Casey said his country had a proud record of standing firm against aggression and would see the present situation through to the end. He warned that it was the Soviet intention to drive a wedge between Great Britain and the United States, but he declared that British-American cooperation is "an anvil that has worn out many a hammer," and would "stand up to a sickle as well."

REPRESENTATIVES OF PERU AND URUGUAY urged the adoption of the Mexican proposal for dealing with Red prisoners of war, which would give them the option of voluntary repatriation to their own countries, or migration to a country of their choice, a solution that has been rejected by the Reds. Both Latin-American delegates strongly opposed the Polish proposal for immediate conclusion of a Korean armistice on Communist terms. The Czechoslovak delegate in a speech to the Assembly echoed the bitter anti-American tirade made last week by Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei Vishinski, particularly his accusations that American capitalists and monopolists were preparing a new world war.

In Korea, there was scarcely a glimmer of hope for early resumption of plenary sessions of the Panmunjom truce conference. General Mark W. Clark, USA, Commander-in-Chief of United Nations Forces, rejected a Communist demand to renew the talks, declaring that it would be useless to do so, unless the Reds were prepared to accept Allied proposals, or to present constructive alternatives. Lt. Gen. William K. Harrison, Jr., USA, senior Allied delegate to the truce conference, said this week that he didn't believe anyone could be "a thorough-going Communist without being a common criminal," and he included Red delegates at Panmunjom in that class. Hopes for a Korean armistice, he said, would depend on major decisions reached at a governmental level of the countries involved.

President Syngman Rhee of Korea said this week that the South Korean army is not yet strong enough to fight alone against Communist forces. Dr. Rhee made this statement in commenting on a recent proposal of General Dwight D. Eisenhower, Republican presidential nominee, that foreign troops in Korea be replaced by native soldiers. While obviously proud of the remarkable strides made by the South Koreans in perfecting a defense force Dr. Rhee implied that it would be a considerable time before it would be possible for his people to defend South Korea successfully against North Korean and Chinese Communists without active foreign military aid.

IN FORMOSA Chiang Kai-shek, head of the Chinese Nationalists, this week urged that his army be permitted to invade Red China, but he indicated that in such an event he would expect much material aid from Allied countries, particularly the United States, before launching such an undertaking. Military observers have been impressed with the recent improvement in the morale and efficiency of the reorganized Chinese Nationalist Army, but believe that very great foreign assistance would be needed before it would be in a position to mount a full-scale offensive against the Chinese mainland with any reasonable hope of success.

A flare-up of violence in Kenya Colony caused the British to send a battalion of troops and a cruiser to that African possession this week, and to declare a state of emergency in the colony. This drastic action was made necessary by the murderous activities of members of a fanatic, secret, anti-white society, known as Mau Mau. Members of this organization, said to number about 200,000 natives of the Kikuyu tribe, have taken a blood oath to drive the British out of Kenya. In the last few weeks they have murdered at least 43 persons, set buildings and crops on fire, and slaughtered numerous cattle.

ON HIS RETURN FROM EUROPE this week Secretary of the Navy Dan A. Kimball told the press that he had observed an over-all improvement in the North Atlantic Treaty Organization, as contrasted with what he had seen on a similar trip a year ago. He noted a marked improvement in West Germany where there is little or no unemployment, despite an increase of 10 million in population since the close of World War II. He said that excellent results were obtained from the joint exercises of the armed forces of the NATO countries. Mr. Kimball said he expected early ratification of the EDC treaty, which he felt was essential to the maintenance of a proper European defense force.

SERVICE NEWS AND GOSSIP

The Story Behind Korea Rotation Mix-Up—A strange situation developed this week in which an Army field commander was widely reported as being overruled by the Secretary of the Army on a matter in which both are in complete agreement—namely, the necessity of continuing Rotation from Korea on as equitable a basis as possible.

The background of the problem needs to be told if an injustice is to be avoided. Here then is the story behind the Rotation problem and the announcements from Tokyo and Washington, D. C., which received front-page newspaper treatment.

For more than a year, Army officials, both at Far East Command headquarters in Japan and at the Pentagon, have worried over the staggering problem of maintaining the Rotation pipeline in the face of a budget which does not recognize combat demands. Not generally understood is the fact that the current military budget is based on the assumption that fighting would end by 1 July 1952.

The budget, prepared just about a year ago, makes no provision for combat losses—for example, casualties—and hence has created serious manpower difficulties. Defense officials emphasized during hearings on the '53 budget that supplemental funds would be necessary if the fighting continued beyond the 1 July date. Secretary of Defense Robert A. Lovett confirmed at a press conference this week the Department's intention to ask such supplemental funds.

But the Army today must work within the '53 budget, which provides inadequately for the manpower and travel dollars necessary to maintain Rotation. The Army is getting along, as one official put it, "by taking it out of our hide and there wasn't much beef there to start with."

As regards the immediate Rotation situation, another complicating factor needs to be understood. During April, May and June of this year, under compulsion from the Department of Defense and the Bureau of the Budget, and warned repeatedly that reduced manpower ceilings were not to be exceeded, the Army was forced to reduce draft calls during these three months to a total of only 48,000 men.

In Tokyo and Washington, the Rotation pipeline planners warned that a "flat spot" would occur. They said months ago that Rotation on a 36-point basis would have to be modified. Otherwise, combat efficiency of the Army would be placed in peril.

The problem was kept under close surveillance and communication was frequent between General Clark and Secretary Pace, through General Collins, Army Chief of Staff. From Tokyo, General Clark called for as much assistance as could be given him to continue Rotation on a 36-point basis. He did not have to cite the fact that an extension of duty in Korea, particularly for those in the front lines, would hurt morale. At the Pentagon, Secretary Pace and his aides did what they could to keep the flow of replacements to Korea at sufficient strength to maintain the 36-point Rotation.

But all parties realized that demand had to exceed supply, notably because of the "flat spot" in the training program and because of the release during the fall months of thousands of Reservists, National Guardsmen and Selective Service inductees.

Secretary Pace and General Clark, in agreement on the need to continue Rotation as close to the 36-point level as possible, were in agreement also that Rotation criteria would have to be changed to prevent dangerous consequences to national security.

How then to do it? A number of alternate proposals were analyzed. Consideration even was given to the possibility of instituting some type of unit rotation. Rotation of companies, battalions or even divisions, Army officials have always said, is the most efficient way to do the job. In addition to saving money and manpower, unit rotation builds esprit and safeguards the integrity of fighting units.

But unit rotation is impossible now, as was the case when Rotation was initiated in Korea. One reason is that the Army simply does not have enough units, not engaged in training assignments, to maintain unit rotation. During the next year, this problem will get worse because something like 750,000 men will leave Army service in a 12-month period.

Another reason why unit rotation on a widespread scale cannot be launched is that, if begun suddenly, some personnel would be returned from Korea with as little as one or two months' service, while others would be retained for more than a year. Unit rotation on a limited basis, modified to distribute service equally, may yet be tried, but only on an experimental basis. During the next months, other methods will be necessary.

Newspaper stories which reported that General Clark had issued an order raising the point requirements for all men, including those in combat, are erroneous. General Clark did inform Washington that when October criteria for Rotation were announced, probably at the end of the month, the requirement would be 38 points. But no order to that effect was issued.

General Clark simply does not have sufficient replacements to permit Rotation on the 36-point basis. Although no official announcement was made, the fact that an extension was in effect quickly became known as men with more than 36 points were continued on duty in Korea because no replacements were available.

Here is where some confusion developed. Secretary Pace told General Clark that the four-point credit per month for men in Zone "A" was not to be changed. The fact of the matter is that General Clark was not going to change the four-point credit, but would be forced to make 38 points, instead of 36 points, the requirement for Rotation. Secretary Pace said in a message to the Far East that Rotation for men in Zone "A" was to continue "as at present." This, General Clark took to mean 38 months, although Secretary Pace meant 36 months.

One reason for the confusion may be in the fact that this action was not entirely an Army matter. It is known that the Department of Defense had an important say in the problem.

As the field commander, General Clark is, of course, given wide authority to plan for the utilization of his available manpower, including Rotation. Therefore—and this is important—Secretary Pace did not, as has been widely reported, overrule General Clark. Instead, he told the Far East Commander to return to the 36 point Rotation for men in Zone "A" as soon as conditions would permit.

Although it is now no secret that a "policy decision" has been made in Washington that men in Zone "A" will continue to be eligible for Rotation after accumulating 36 points, their actual departure from Korea will still depend on the availability of replacements. No magician, General Clark cannot send men home unless

...The Marine Corps has initiated a special RECRUITING INCENTIVE which may help solve the problem created by the 50 per cent cut in recruiting funds. Enlisted Marines, both men and women, will get five days tacked onto their BOOT LEAVE if they ferret out an acceptable recruit for the Corps "While on authorized recruit leave from a recruit depot."

...The Air Force anticipates that 80 per cent of its COMMISSIONER OFFICERS will come from ROTC ranks. Special attention will be given to development of pilots, navigators and observers. Current AF ROTC enrollment is 145,000, with 148,000 in Army ROTC and 16,000 in Navy ROTC. The Air Force long has been concerned because its officer corps contains the SMALLEST PERCENTAGE of college graduates. It's a main argument for an AF Academy.

...Beginning on 2 Jan. '53, the Canadian Army will enroll a limited number of 16-year-olds as APPRENTICE SOLDIERS; prior to WWII, youths of 14 and up were enlisted as BOY SOLDIERS. . . . Army officials estimate it takes $3.50 PER HOUR to keep a man available for training. . . . After 31 years' duty, M/Sgt. Joseph Murray has signed up for a new hitch at Lackland AFB, Tex.; a tuba player in the band, he anticipates no SUDDEN TRANSFER having served three decades in the San Antonio area. . . . Lt. Jack W. Miller, MC, USN, is on an around-the-world trip to collect information for the AMERICAN LEPROSY FOUNDATION, to which he is on loan from the Navy. . . . Quartermaster officials estimate $2,-000,000 annually will be saved as a result of a new MEAT CUTTING METHOD developed by M/Sgt. James A. Horn, Jr., at Ft. Benning, Ga.; his process involves a new technique for boning a ham to provide three pieces of equal thickness instead of the two large pieces from the cushion and one small piece from the knuckle section.

replacements are on hand, unless the size of the fighting force is to be reduced. It may be that temporarily General Clark will increase the shuttling of men back and forth among the various zones in Korea and also from Japan to get back to the 36-point Zone "A" Rotation as quickly as possible.

In Washington, there was speculation, understandably without official confirmation, that the Secretary's action is particularly significant because of the fact that an election is so close. But it must be emphasized again that Secretary Pace never ordered General Clark to cut back immediately to a 36 point Rotation eligibility for men in the front lines.

What is unfortunate is the fact that a large segment of the public was led to believe that the Secretary of the Army and the Far East Commander were involved in a dispute concerning Rotation. This is not the fact of the case.

General Clark, however, has not been told that he will receive replacements from the United States to continue the 36-point Rotation for men in Zone "A." This is impossible, Army officials say, because such replacements are not immediately available. They probably will be after the "flat spot" in the manpower picture is eliminated, probably in two or three months, and providing Congress votes the necessary funds.

Although there will be more replacements for Korea later, the situation is going to get worse before it gets better. This means that if the 36-point Rotation is implemented for Zone "A," personnel behind the lines in the three-point and two-point zones in Korea and the one-point zone in Japan (1½ if without dependents) undoubtedly will be required to accumulate even more than 38 points before returning to the United States.

RA Integration Bill—The Army has renewed efforts to obtain Department of Defense and Bureau of the Budget approval for a legislative request to authorize appointment, over an extended period of time, of an additional 6,000 officers in the Regular Army.

Such a measure was discussed frequently during the 82d session of Congress, but never was submitted to Capitol Hill. A bill is expected to be presented during the first session of the 83d Congress.

The legislation, as tentatively drafted, would permit integration of Reserve officers on active duty in grades through major.

FOR YOUR FRIENDS IN THE ARMED FORCES!

Racking your brains for a PERSONAL Christmas gift? There is a grand solution: A present of the ARMY NAVY AIR FORCE JOURNAL.

A subscription to the ARMY NAVY AIR FORCE JOURNAL for husband, brother or sweetheart means that for fifty-two times in the coming year your Christmas thought will be refreshed in the mind of the recipient. It will be appreciated by the soldier, the sailor or the airman.

Because, in the weekly ARMY NAVY AIR FORCE JOURNAL there will be found all the news so vital to their welfare.

Because, all Executive and Congressional acts will be reported in its columns.

Because of its publication of official circulars and reports and matters of service interest.

Because of its discussions of foreign relations.

Because of its forthright editorials.

Because, going on 90 years young, it vigorously and forcefully advocates all policies important to the welfare of the Services and with equal vigor and force opposes those harmful to them.

To insure prompt delivery of this exceptional CHRISTMAS GIFT simply clip and mail the attached coupon immediately:

ARMY NAVY AIR FORCE JOURNAL
1711 Connecticut Avenue, N. W., Washington 9, D. C.

I enclose coupon with my check for one year's subscription to the ARMY NAVY AIR FORCE JOURNAL, to be sent with a Christmas card to:

That "good deeds provide their own reward" is well known to members of an unusual committee of the Air Force Officers' Wives' Club of Washington. Known as the Arlington Committee, this group offers a helping hand to bereaved families attending burials and reinterments of Air Force personnel at Arlington National Cemetery. Their presence symbolizes the sympathy and concern, not only of the Chief of Staff of the United States Air Force, but also of the many associates and friends from the Air Force who are unable to be present.

Mrs. Hoyt S. Vandenberg, wife of the Chief of Staff, first suggested the need for this service. Having attended funerals for many who had spent long years in the military and finding only the immediate family or, in one instance, only the widow present, Mrs. Vandenberg brought the problem before the Club. In November, 1948, the Arlington Committee was formed, and during the four intervening years members have attended 1143 services.

No distinction in assistance is made, whether the funeral is that of an airman or officer. Regardless of race, creed or color, and regardless of the weather, at least two Air Force wives are present to help the bereaved in countless ways.

In addition to offering sympathetic support at a difficult time, the committee member's assistance has varied from baby sitting during the services to helping strangers in the city feel more at home. They explain the military ceremony, procure transportation for those in need, and have even helped in finding relatives or friends located in the area.

Having always in mind the desire to let families know that they are not forgotten and that there are those who care, the interest of the Arlington Committee extends to correspondence with the bereaved. When distance, illness or old age prevents relatives from coming to Washington, a letter is written describing the service. Upon request, members have mailed copies of the minister's remarks, provided photographs or arranged for graveside wreaths.

Because of the continuing personnel changes, new members are constantly being added and trained for the Arlington Committee which includes 40 Air Force officers' wives. Those who volunteer feel that the sense of personal satisfaction in helping others more than balances the difficult and unhappy aspects of this work.

Mrs. Bryant Boatner, who with Lieutenant General Boatner recently returned to the Washington area, is now serving for the second time as Chairman of the Arlington Committee. As an aid in providing further training, Mrs. Boatner arranged a meeting and round table discussion for committee members recently. Lt. Col. Alphonse Slivinski, Air Chaplain of Headquarters, and Maj. Richard M. Graham, Liaison Chaplain were present to assist in coordinating plans.

The hundreds of grateful letters received from families all over the United States and abroad, attest to the value of the Arlington Committee. The following note from one of the bereaved families is typical:

"In behalf of my three sisters and myself, I want to express to you my sincere appreciation for your kindness in attending the funeral of my dear brother in Arlington Cemetery last Friday afternoon. It was indeed kind of you to come and to offer your services in an hour like that and we all appreciate it more than words can express. Your presence along with that of your friend meant a great deal to us in that particular hour. Your thoughtfulness and kindness to us will not soon be forgotten."

Chairmen of the Arlington Committee have included Mrs. Charles Munroe, Mrs. Lauris Norstad, Mrs. Walter E. Todd, Mrs. Joseph Smith and Mrs. Boatner.

The Chemical Corps Wives' Club held their first meeting of the fall 1952 season at the Army-Navy Country Club 16 Oct. Hostesses for the occasion were Mrs. William H. Greene and Mrs. William S. Hutchinson, Jr.

Before going into the luncheon, a receiving line was formed so that the members and guests could meet the guests of honor, Mrs. Frank Pace, wife of the Secretary of the Army, Mrs. Thomas B. Larkin, wife of the Assistant Army Chief of Staff, Mrs. Anthony C. McAuliffe, wife of the Assistant Chief of Staff, G-1, and Mrs. Alfred M. Koster, author of Verses of the Service.

Mrs. Egbert F. Bullene, wife of Major General Bullene and honorary President of the club, called the meeting to order and introduced the new President of the club, Mrs. John G. Appel, and the new Secretary-Treasurer, Mrs. Donald Bluejacket.

The Chemical Corps Wives' Club will open its fall social season with a dinner-dance to be held on 1 Nov. at the Army-Navy Country Club. The members of the club are looking forward to the occasion as a time for meeting those members of the Corps who have recently been assigned to the Washington area and for meeting again old friends.

The guests will be greeted by General Bullene, Chief Chemical Officer, and Mrs. Bullene, and Brig. Gen. C. E. Loucks, Deputy Chief Chemical Officer, and Mrs. Loucks. Hostesses in charge of plans for the evening are Mrs. John G. Appel and Mrs. Jack F. Lane.

The Army-Air Force Dental Wives are entertaining this evening, 25 Oct., at a "game night" at the Andrews AFB, D. C. Officers' Club. Mrs. C. E. Crofut is chairman for the occasion, assisted by Mrs. Jack Messner. Mrs. Walter D. Love is president of the group.

where both officers are on duty.

The bride-to-be, a graduate of Immaculate College, majored in physics and mathematics and joined the Navy after receiving her degree. She later took post-graduate courses in aerological engineering at M. I. T.

Lieutenant Utterback is the son of Comdr. Chester W. Utterback, (SC) USN, and Mrs. Utterback, of San Diego, Calif. He graduated at Boston University, later following in his father's footsteps and joining the Navy Supply Corps.

The Post Chapel at Ft. Sam Houston, Tex., was the scene, Saturday, 4 Oct. of the wedding of Miss Margaret Lee Allwine, daughter of Lt. Col. and Mrs. Franklin N. Allwine, and Robert Henry Heuck, son of Capt. (Ret.) and Mrs. Robert A. Heuck of San Antonio, Tex. Chaplain (Lt. Col.) Edward E. Kusch officiated at the double ring ceremony. The bride was given in marriage by her father, Lt. Col. F. N. Allwine, who is stationed at the San Antonio General Depot.

Mrs. Agnes E. Wade of San Diego, Calif. announces the engagement and approaching marriage of her daughter, Miss Thelma Wade to Donald W. Wissinger, son of Capt. Donald Owen Wissinger, (MC) USN, and Mrs. Wissinger, also of San Diego. The wedding will take place 23 Nov.

The bride-elect was graduated in June from San Diego High School. Her fiance, who is now in naval aviation, attended the University of Indiana and Northrup Aeronautical Institute.

Col. and Mrs. Frank H. Wirsig, USMC, of Washington, D. C. announce the engagement of their daughter, Mary Frances, to 1st Lt. William H. Henry, Jr., son of Dr. and Mrs. William H. Henry of Middletown, Ohio.

The bride-elect's father, Colonel Wirsig, is on the staff of the National War College, Ft. Lesley J. McNair, Washington, D. C. Colonel and Mrs. Wirsig live at Ft. McNair.

Miss Wirsig attended Sidwell Friends School in Washington and schools in Hawaii, and is a graduate of Bethesda, Chevy Chase, High School.

Lieutenant Henry is a graduate of Ohio University and his fraternity is Phi Kappa Tau. Following services in World War II, he continued his studies and received his commission in the Regular Army. He was rotated back to the United States in November 1951 after combat service in Korea and is now on duty with the Third Infantry at Ft. McNair.

The young couple is planning a military wedding 22 Nov. at the Ft. Myer Chapel, Arlington, Va.

Col. and Mrs. William O. Printup of Ft. Sill, Okla., announce the engagement of their daughter, Ruth Cody, to Capt. Nicholas George Eckert.

Miss Printup attended Furman University and graduated from the Richmond Professional Institute of the College of William and Mary.

Captain Eckert is the son of Mrs. Nicholas Eckert of New Brunswick, N. J., and the late Mr. Eckert. He graduated from Louisiana State University and completed his graduate work at Purdue University and the Illinois Institute of Technology.

Captain Eckert is aide-de-camp to Maj. Gen. A. W. Harper, Commanding General, Ft. Sill.

An early fall wedding is planned.

Capt. Marilynn M. Minton, ANC, daughter of Mrs. Edna Minton of El Paso, Tex., became the bride of Capt. Morrison F. Clay, Inf., USA, at an evening ceremony on 14 Sept. at Chapel No. 5, Camp Chaffee, Ark. Chaplain Leslie L. Bryant performed the double-ring ceremony.

The bride, given in marriage by her brother, Herbert Minton of El Paso, Tex., wore a white gown of French imported Chantilly lace and satin. The tight-fitting lace over satin bodice had long, fitted sleeves and a full skirt of satin ending in a chapel train. Her fingertip veil of illusion cascaded from a bridal cloche of lace trimmed with pearls. She carried an arm bouquet of white roses and streamers of stephanotis.

Capt. Virginia Porch, ANC, was the bride's maid of honor, and Capt. Anastasia Urbanik, ANC, was the bridesmaid. Both are stationed at Ft. Knox, Ky.

Maj. John A. Moncrief of St. Louis, Mo., was the groom's best man, while Capt. Leland Campbell and Lt. Herbert Toms, both of Camp Chaffee, served as ushers.

Both Captain and Mrs. Clay served in Korea and returned last January. Previously, they had served in Japan.

The marriage of Miss Ann Franklin Hofford, daughter of Professor and Mrs. Herbert Malcolm Hofford of Wakefield, R. I., to Lt. Drake Wilson, USMA '52, took place on 20 Oct. in the Chapel of the Most Holy Trinity, West Point, N. Y. The Rev. Joseph P. Moore officiated at the afternoon service. The bridegroom is the son of Col. and Mrs. Leroy Clark Wilson of Raleigh, N. C., and the brother of Lt. Robert Maris Wilson, USMA '50, now stationed in Germany.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, wore a ballerina-length gown of Chantilly lace over satin. Her shoulder-length veil of French illusion was attached to a satin Juliette cap, and she carried a prayer book with marker of small white chrysanthemums and ivy. Miss Phebe C. Hofford was her sister's maid of honor, and the bridesmaids were the Misses Marjorie Ann Hall and Elsie F. Vanderbilt, classmates of the bride at Smith College.

Lt. Donald R. Swygert, a classmate of the groom, served as best man, and the ushers were Lt. Harry S. Wilson, Jr., and Robert L. Ackerson, both USMA '52, and Cadets Dennell D. Zander and Joe C. Williams, Class of '53.

Following the ceremony a reception was held at the West Point Officers' Club. After short wedding trip, Lieutenant and Mrs. Wilson will be stationed at Ft. Hood, Tex., until his departure for FECOM in March.

On the afternoon of 18 Oct., Miss Elisabeth Georgina Robinson became the bride of Lt. Robert Ansel Purple, at the Post Chapel, Ft. Myer, Va. The bride is the daughter of Mrs. Walsie D. Robinson of Arlington, Va., and Brig. Gen. Joseph S. Robinson, USA-Ret., of Boston, Mass., and parents of the bridegroom are Col. William C. Purple, USMC-Ret., and Mrs. Purple of Bethesda, Md.

Given in marriage by her brother, Maj. Michel A. G. Robinson, USAF, the bride wore an ice-blue ballerina-length net gown with a satin jacket. Her matching fingertip veil was attached to a shirred net bandeau, and she carried white roses and pom-pom chrysanthemums. Her matron of honor and only attendant was her sister, Mrs. Rawlins M. Colquitt of Cataumet, Mass. Mr. William C. Purple, Jr., of Alexandria, Va., served as his brother's best man.

Upon their return from a wedding trip, Lieutenant and Mrs. Purple will be at home temporarily in Arlington, Va.

A wedding of interest in military and civilian circles will take place today in Swarthmore, Pa., when Miss Helen Krangs, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Otto Krangs, Jr., will be married to Mr. William Alexander McCulloch, 3d, son of Brig. Gen. William A. McCulloch, USA-Ret., and Mrs. McCulloch of Swarthmore.

The ceremony will be performed in the home of the bride's parents and will be followed by a reception. The officiating minister will be Dr. Frederick Igler, Minister to Students at the University of Pennsylvania. The bride will be given in marriage by her father, who is a Philadelphia attorney. Mr. McCulloch's best man will be his father, General McCulloch.

Miss Krangs was graduated from Bradford (Mass.) Junior College and the University of Pennsylvania. Mr. McCulloch was graduated from the Cathedral School for Boys, Washington, D. C., and after almost three years in the Armed Forces, entered Lehigh University, from which he was graduated in 1951. He now holds a Reserve commission in the Corps of Engineers.

The bridegroom is the grandson of the late Mr. and Mrs. Frank A. Sumner of Asheville, N. C., and the great-grandson of the late Mr. and Mrs. Randolph Turner of Upper Spartanburg County, S. C. His great-great grandfathers were Hethorn McCulloch and William Akin, early settlers of Rensselaer, N. Y.

Among those attending the wedding will be the bridegroom's only sister, Miss Florence Turner McCulloch, who arrived in time for the rehearsal dinner, on 24 Oct., at the home of her parents. Miss McCulloch is at the University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill, where she is working on her Doctorate in Romance languages.

Brig. Gen. Percy Lee Sadler, USA-Ret., and Mrs. Sadler announce the engagement of their daughter, Mary Ambler, to 2d Lt. George Joseph Feuerbach, USAFR.

Miss Sadler was graduated from Eden Hall, Convent of the Sacred Heart, Tarentum, Pa., and attended Moravian College, Bethlehem, Pa. Lieutenant Feuerbach was graduated from Lehigh University last June.

The wedding is planned for December.

Col. and Mrs. Glen C. McBride, Dallas, Tex., announce the engagement of their daughter, Carolyn to Ensign Doyle L. Leach, USN, son of Mr. and Mrs. D. L. Leach of Montrose, Colo. The couple will be married in December.

Miss McBride attended the University of Missouri school of Education. She was a member of Delta Delta Delta social sorority and served as president of the group last year.

Ensign Leach was graduated from the University of Missouri's school of Business and Public Administration in August. He received his commission upon graduation. He is a member of Delta Upsilon social fraternity.

Gen. Sarnoff Heads Manpower Study

organizational structure and manpower distribution of the military departments and to recommend such legislative and administrative changes as it deems desirable in order to effect still further savings in manpower throughout the Armed Forces."

General Sarnoff made the following statement upon assuming his duties:

"Americans who have the right and the freedom to criticize their government have the obligation to respond to their government's call for help when the call comes. This is the principal reason why I have taken on this job. Another good reason for my doing so is the deep respect I have for Secretary Lovett and Assistant Secretary Rosenberg, for their untiring efforts and their devotion to their difficult tasks in the Department of Defense. I count it a privilege to work with them.

"I have been very pleased to find a highly competent and hard working staff already at work on some of the problems with which the Commission must deal. I expect that the Commission will go forward and make steady progress. We shall invite six outstanding Americans from civilian life and four highly qualified retired General or Flag Officers from the Military Services to join us in this important work. We need the very best thinking, experience and competence we can find and I feel sure we will find them."

Military Director

Military staff director of the Commission is Maj. Gen. Merrill B. Twining, USMC, who was highly praised by Secretary Rosenberg at a press conference this week called to introduce General Sarnoff to Pentagon correspondents. Mr. Henry Herz of Mrs. Rosenberg's staff is executive secretary of the Commission.

Each Service has named an officer to serve in liaison capacity with the Commission. Maj. Gen. Roger Browne, USAF, Director of Manpower and Organization, Deputy Chief of Staff, Operations, is the Air Force representative. Brig. Gen. John B. Powell, USA, of the Office of the Assistant Chief of Staff, G-1, is the Army representative. The Navy liaison officer is Capt. Henry C. Bruton, USN, who has been selected for promotion to rear admiral. Marine Corps representative is Col. Cliff Atkinson, Jr., USMC of the Marine Corps Personnel Department.

In addition, each Service has named an officer to serve on the working staff of the Commission.

The retired officers who will serve as members of the Commission will not be placed on active duty and will wear civilian clothes, according to Commission authorities.

Will Make Field Inspections

At the Pentagon press conference, General Sarnoff said, in response to a question put him by a JOURNAL reporter, that the Commission probably would make field inspections in the United States and overseas in accomplishing its mission.

Significant to the program the Commission will follow is the fact that an earlier directive, which was published in full in THE JOURNAL of 23 Aug, has been replaced by a new directive for the Commission, which is dated 22 Oct.

The 22 Oct. date means that General Sarnoff certainly had an important say in the basic guidepost to the Commission's work.

Difference in Directives

Apparently, a major difference between the two directives is that less emphasis is placed in the second on a study of equipment. The new directive states emphatically that "consideration of equipment will be a purpose of the Commission but only to the extent that economy and efficiency in manpower utilization are so dependent upon equipment as to necessitate consideration of both."

Undoubtedly, General Sarnoff wants to avoid as much as possible broadening the manpower study to include investigation of weapons, equipment, etc. Obviously, such an undertaking would be of almost impossible magnitude and complexity and would involve the Commission, inevitably, in purely military problems.

The complete text of the new directive follows:

Subject

Citizens Advisory Commission on Manpower Utilization in the Armed Services.

There is hereby established in the Office of the Secretary of Defense, a Citizens Advisory Commission on Manpower Utilization in the Armed Services. The Chairman of this Commission will report (through the Assistant Secretary of Defense for Manpower and personnel) to the Secretary of Defense.

I. Membership

A. The Chairman and members of the Commission will be appointed by and serve at the pleasure of the Secretary of Defense.

B. The Commission will be composed of not more than eleven eminent citizens. The majority, including the Chairman, shall be civilians. The Commission shall include a retired General or Flag Officer from each of the four Armed Services: Army, Navy, Air Force and Marine Corps.

II. Purposes and Objectives

A. The purpose of this Commission is to make a comprehensive and thorough study of the entire problem of the utilization of manpower by the Armed Services.

B. Consideration of equipment will likewise be a purpose of the Commission but only to the extent that economy and efficiency in manpower utilization are so dependent upon equipment as to necessitate consideration of both.

C. The Commission shall consider existing legislation that affects manpower requirements in the Armed Services and recommend such changes or new legislation as it may consider necessary.

D. The Commission's recommendations shall be designed to accomplish the most economical and effective use of manpower in the Armed Forces, without diminishing their combat capabilities.

E. The Commission shall submit continuing reports containing its recommendations on the above to the Secretary of Defense. The entire series of such reports shall constitute the Report of the Commission.

III. Authority

A. The Commission is authorized to conduct a thorough examination of the authorities, responsibilities and criteria within each Service pertaining to the development, authorization and audit of Tables of Organization, Tables of Distribution, or their equivalents.

B. The Commission is authorized to visit all installations and establishments of the Army, Navy, Air Force and Marine Corps, at home or abroad.

C. Subject to existing legal and legislative restrictions, and the approval of the Secretary of Defense, the Commission is authorized to call upon experts from private industry to make specific surveys and to provide necessary technical advice to the extent required to accomplish its objectives.

IV. Administration

A. All Departments and Agencies within the Department of Defense are directed to provide the Commission with such information or assistance as the Commission may require to accomplish its purposes and objectives.

B. A technical staff, including a Director thereof, and an Executive Secretary will be furnished the Commission by the Assistant Secretary of Defense for Manpower and Personnel.

C. The Commission shall be furnished such operating facilities and technical and clerical assistance as it may require.

D. The Secretary of each Department will appoint a fully authorized representative for each Service who will be responsible for directing, coordinating and supervising the implementation of necessary action on the part of each Service. The character and size of the support shall be adequate to the Commission's needs.

This directive supersedes Department of Defense Directive Number 5120.7 dated 15 August 1952.

Secretary of Defense

Chairman World Renowned

General Sarnoff, world renowned for his achievements in the communications field, was elected President of RCA in 1930 at the age of 39.

The Armed Forces know him well. He was appointed a lieutenant colonel in the Signal Corps Reserve in 1924 and was promoted to the rank of colonel in 1931.

During World War II, when he was made a brigadier general in 1944, Chairman Sarnoff served as Special Consultant on Communications to General Eisenhower.

Although General Sarnoff was placed on the retired list last year, upon his reaching the age of 60, as required by law, a special notation in his military file states that he may be recalled to active service at any time his services are needed.

General and Mrs. Sarnoff have three sons, all of whom are veterans of service in World War II. They are Lt. Robert Sarnoff of the Navy; Capt. Edward Sarnoff of the Army and Sgt. Thomas Sarnoff, also of the Army.

The Manpower Commission, it was reported this week, will not hold up recommendations pending the issuance of a final report. As areas are uncovered where savings can be realized in manpower and money, these situations will be called to the attention of Assistant Secretary Rosenberg and Secretary Lovett.

The important status which the Pentagon is giving to the Commission means that its recommendations will be acted upon promptly.

Spadework Done

When the full Commission begins its deliberations, members will have the benefit of spadework studies by the technical experts and the preliminary review of this material by General Sarnoff.

This will accelerate action, which is particularly important since the rider to the 1953 Appropriations Bill, although it does not call for the creation of such a Commission was done by the Johnson Subcommittee, requires the Secretary of Defense to submit a report on manpower savings in January.

Secretary of Defense Lovett has told all echelons of the Department of Defense and the Services that the Manpower Commission is to receive all cooperation possible. With the technical staff already in action, with outstanding liaison officers named and with distinguished retired officers as members of the Commission, it is predicted that the complex study will be accomplished with maximum effectiveness.

Secretary Lovett's Letter

Following is the complete text of Secretary Lovett's communication to Senator Lyndon Johnson, which preceded by less than a week, the announcement that General Sarnoff had agreed to serve as Chairman of the Commission.

"My dear Senator Johnson:

"I have your letter dated October 7th, Austin, Texas, which was hand-delivered to my office on the afternoon of October 13th. In your letter you call attention to a recommendation contained in the Fortieth Report of the Senate Preparedness Committee that the Defense Department establish a group of eminent and qualified citizens to study the problem of more efficient and economical use of military personnel." You refer to the fact that in my reply of July 15th, I expressed agreement with the proposal and stated that I would proceed to select members of the Commission.

"In your letter under reply you say that 'upon the basis of recent inquiries I understand that no members of this group have been selected or appointed.' Furthermore, you express concern at reports 'that strong opposition to the proposal exists within your Department to bringing in 'outsiders' who might change established procedures' and you also state 'that it has been reliably reported that an important group within your organization has said that a manpower study commission will be appointed "only as a last resort and under extreme pressure"'."

"I am sorry that you have been unnecessarily disturbed by such rumors, since they are not supported by the facts. I would have been very glad to give you a progress report if you had inquired of me, and I am happy to set the record straight for you now in the event that it may relieve you of further apprehension.

"You will recall that the matter of manpower use and tables of organization was covered by three separate communications following the considerable amount of testimony given before both the Armed Services and the Appropriations Committees of Congress. For easy reference I will set out these three approaches below:

"(a) After a series of Congressional hearings, a letter dated June 25, 1952, was written jointly by Senator O'Mahoney and you suggesting the formation of a committee to make a searching examination of manpower utilization. In my reply, which welcomed your suggestion, I stated that we would go forward with such a study on manpower utilization, and I took preliminary steps toward the formation of such a group.

"(b) On July 7th, the Senate Preparedness Committee issued its Fortieth Report containing various recommendations, among them one relating to the establishment of a group of eminent and qualified citizens to study the problem of more efficient and economical use of military personnel." On July 15th you were notified of our complete agreement with the proposal and stating that we would proceed to select members of the Commission. The suggested composition of the Commission and the scope of the inquiry were spelled out in the Fortieth Report of the Preparedness Committee.

"On July 10th, the Defense Appropriations Act, 1953, (Public Law 488, 82d Congress) was approved. This Act, in Section 610, directed the Secretary of Defense to 'submit revised tables of organization and tables of equipment' for the military services, together with recommendations for 'decreasing the number of personnel positions, clerical positions, supply positions, and other administrative positions so that the combat effectiveness of our armed forces may be improved.' This Act, therefore, considerably expanded the scope of the study since it embraced not only the utilization of manpower but also tables of equipment, thus necessitating a much enlarged area of review. In addition, it altered the method of procedure. It did not require the establishment of a Committee, but did require a report to the Congress. We thus had three communications, each on the same general subject and each differing somewhat from the other.

"In an effort to meet the overlapping requirements of these three approaches and to make progress as rapidly as possible, we set up a planning group on July 19th made up of civilian and military personnel of the Department to work out some way of providing the information necessitated by the three separate communications on the subject of manpower utilization and tables of organization and equipment. This planning group was instructed to prepare a directive establishing a Citizens' Advisory Committee, to suggest eminent persons for the Committee membership, to suggest areas offering large-scale early accomplishment and to prepare an agenda for the first meeting of the Committee. You will agree, I hope, that action was promptly taken in the circumstances and that, contrary to the reports which you have obtained, there was no evidence of an attempt to avoid the use of 'outsiders.' The contrary is the fact.

"On August 15th a directive was issued establishing the Citizens' Advisory Committee. This directive gave the Committee complete authority to achieve the objectives specifically outlined in the Appropriations Act as expanded by the Committee report.

"Assistant Secretary Rosenberg assembled a full-time technical and clerical staff which began at once the accumulation of facts regarding the present personnel strengths in various categories of the tables of organization and initiated studies to permit compliance with the objectives of Section 610 of Public Law 488, in addition to assembling the data necessary to permit any action required in accordance with the recommendations in the report of your Preparedness Committee. The services of Maj. Gen. Merrill B. Twining, USMC, were fortunately obtained for the position of Director of the Technical Staff of the Citizens' Advisory Committee. This officer, who has recently returned from Korea, was selected for this position because of his extensive military experience and his known sympathy for the stated objectives of the Committee.

"Data so far collected for the consideration of the Committee and of this office are encouraging and await the review and judgment of the Committee when its membership is complete. Meanwhile, however, as promising areas of manpower savings are discovered, action is currently taken to profit by improved utilization.

"The selection of members of the Committee was promptly undertaken. The qualifications desired by you (Page 8784, Congressional Record, Volume 98, No. 116, Monday, June 30th) for manning the Commission—the finest brains available—men of initiative, bold thought, careful planning and wide experience—has required that selection be made carefully and that a hasty approach be avoided. Ability to obtain the services of such men is never easy and is particularly complicated at this moment by political activities in a Presidential election year, by the uncertain period of their appointment and by the hesitancy of some of the 'best brains in the United States' to undertake such work in the atmosphere of a political campaign which might subject them, without cause, to the attention of headline hunters. We have been fortunate in obtaining the services of a Chairman whose reputation, special experience and ability is of the highest order. The membership of the eleven-man Committee should be completed in the not too distant future. When the full Committee meets it will have before it for review several projects which the civilian and military staffs have completed. In view of the circumstances outlined above, I feel that sound progress has been made so far.

"With respect to the comment in your letter that 'opposition exists within the Department' to the study designed to promote more efficient and economical use of military personnel, neither Assistant Secretary Rosenberg nor I have observed any evidence of an effort to block the review we have under-

Obituaries

The Hon. Francis P. Matthews

The Honorable Francis P. Matthews, U. S. Ambassador to Ireland, and former Secretary of the Navy, died of a heart attack, while at his home at Omaha, Neb., on 18 Oct. He was 65 years old.

Mr. Matthews was home from Dublin only for a short visit at the time of his death and had seemed in apparent good health.

Born of Irish parents in Albion, Nebr., Mr. Matthews was a leading Catholic layman, prominent in banking and industrial circles in Omaha. As Secretary of the Navy from May 1949, until shortly before being appointed Ambassador to Ireland a year ago, he served through the stormy period in Service circles of disputes over Unification policies.

He is survived by his widow, Mrs. Mary

Sands Proving Ground, NMex. He is survived by his widow, Mrs Dorothy A Darrah, and two children, Dorothy Alice, 3, and Ralph E Darrah, Jr, 1. Burial was in Connecticut.

Adm. Montgomery Meigs Taylor, USA-Ret.

Adm. Montgomery Meigs Taylor, USA-Ret, died at the U. S. Naval Hospital, Bethesda, Md., on 21 Oct., at the age of 83.

A native of Washington, D. C., Admiral Taylor was graduated with the class of 1890, from the U. S. Naval Academy, where he had been one of Navy's outstanding halfbacks.

His 47 years of active duty included such assignments as commanding the five-inch batteries aboard Admiral Dewey's flagship, the USS Olympia, during the Battle of Manila Bay; the command of the USS Hopkins; command of the Second Torpedo Flotilla; service as Executive Officer of the USS Salem and the USS Milwaukee; the commands of the USS Petrel, the USS Buffalo and the USS Maine. In 1917, Admiral Taylor was assigned to the Office of Naval Operations at the Navy Department, Washington. The following year, he assumed command of the USS Florida and operated with the Grand Fleet in the war zone, for which service, he received the Distinguished Service Medal.

Admiral Taylor served on the staff of the Naval War College for two years and later commanded the Fifteenth Naval District and the Naval Operating Base at Coco Solo, C. Z. Returning to Washington in 1923, he was appointed a member of the Naval Examining Board and Retiring Board, succeeding which, he took command of the Control Force with additional duty as Commander of all submarines in the Atlantic. Later, he became Director of Fleet Training, Navy Department, before becoming Commander of the Third Battleship Division of the Battle Fleet; and then, upon his appointment as vice admiral, he was given the command of the Scouting Fleet. In 1929, Admiral Taylor was put in charge of the War Plans Division of the Chief of Naval Operations, until 1931, when he became Commander-in-Chief of the Asiatic Fleet, in which capacity he was serving at the time of his retirement in 1933. In 1936, he was appointed to serve on the Maritime Commission.

Admiral Taylor, who was a bachelor, was the great nephew of President Zachary Taylor, and the grandson and namesake of the Quartermaster General of the Union Army during the Civil War, Montgomery C. Meigs. Interment was at Arlington National Cemetery, Santa Barbara, Calif.

Maj. Gen. Lucius R. Holbrook, USA-Ret.

Maj. Gen. Lucius Roy Holbrook, USA-Ret., 77, died at Letterman Army Hospital, San Francisco, Calif., 19 Oct.

General Holbrook was born in Arkansaw, Wisc., 30 April 1875, and was graduated from West Point in 1896. While at his second duty station after graduation, Boise Barracks, Ida, he met and married Henrietta Coffin.

During World War I he commanded the 7th Field Artillery Regiment and took it to France, where it was the first U. S. Artillery unit to fire against the enemy. After the general arrived in France, he was assigned as commander of the First Field Artillery Brigade, First Division. He was promoted to Brigadier General and later commanded the 54th Field Artillery Brigade.

From 1921 to 1924 he was Chief of Staff of the old 9th Corps Area (now Sixth Army) under Maj. Gen. Charles G. Morton. He was promoted to Major General in 1930 and became Commanding General of the First Infantry Division, with headquarters at Ft. Hamilton, N. Y., until 1935.

In December 1935, he was assigned as Phillipine Department Commander until the summer of 1938. He was retired from the Service 31 Jan. 1939 because of age, and disability.

He has made his summer home at McCall, Ida., and has lived in San Francisco during the winter months the past several years.

He is survived by his widow, Henrietta, 2901 Pacific Avenue, San Francisco, three sons, all in the Military Service, and four grandchildren.

The eldest son, Col. Frank C. USA, is assigned to the Office of the Quartermaster General Washington, D. C. Capt. John A. USN, is with the Joint Chiefs of Staff, Washington, D. C. The youngest son, Lt. Col. Lucius R. Jr, USAF, is on duty in Formosa.

CWO David Crockett Baxter, USA-Ret.

CWO David Crockett Baxter, USA-Ret., died at his home at Monterey, Calif., on 13 Oct.

Born in 1886, in Cosby, Tenn., Mr. Baxter was a veteran of 40 years service in the Army. Prior to his retirement, he had seen duty on the Mexican border and in both World Wars, and was the last leader of the famed 11th Cavalry Band.

Since his retirement, Mr. Baxter had made his home at Monterey, where he was a member of the Mayflower Congregational Church. He is survived by his widow, Mrs. Nazida C. Baxter of 727 Oak St, Monterey; one daughter, Mrs. Harry Sanders, now living in England; five sons, Vernon, James, Carl, Herbert and Dick Baxter, all of Monterey; and six grandchildren.

Burial was at the National Cemetery, Presidio of Monterey.

Kathryn Meigs Manly

Mrs. Kathryn Meigs Manly, wife of Capt. Matthias Evans Manly, USA-Ret., of 241 Olive Mill Lane, Santa Barbara, California, died suddenly on 20 Oct.

Mrs. Manly was born 4 April, 1894 in Wells, Nev., the daughter of George H. and Ellen Pearson Meigs who were San Francisco residents and who operated cattle ranches in Nevada. She spent her childhood in San Francisco. She married Captain Manly in Coronado, California on October 10, 1918. From then until the Captain's retirement in 1936, the couple lived at many Naval stations both in the United States and abroad. Captain Manly retired in 1936, at which time the couple moved to Santa Barbara where they have lived continuously since.

In addition to her husband, Mrs. Manly is survived by a sister, Mrs. F. H. Poteet, Seattle, Washington; two nieces, Mrs. Allen L. Lindley, Rye, N. Y.; Mrs. Benjamin Berner, Orange, Texas; and two nephews, Calvin Bertolette, New York City and Rudolph Fink, Dayton, Ohio.

Funeral services were conducted on 23 Oct., at the Santa Barbara Cemetery Chapel by Dr. George Hall, Rector of All Saints Episcopal Church. The committal service will take place in the Santa Barbara Columbarium.

War In Korea

They also attacked supply concentrations in the coastal city of Songjin, setting fire to many buildings.

Concentrated attacks were made by Navy planes on warehouses, truck convoys, supply areas and buildings along the east coast from Kosong to Tanchon. A power line tower was knocked out, and buildings, gun positions, and railway trackage were destroyed. An armored car and a locomotive were reported damaged.

Land-based Marine planes ranged from Haeju to Chinnampo, on the west coast, inflicting heavy damage on troop concentrations, gun positions, barracks and warehouses. Large fires and numerous secondary explosions were reported, indicating the presence of ammunition storage.

Four enemy aircraft made non-firing passes at Navy planes over Wonsan in the early morning. The planes, evidently MIGs, were not readily identified, and at first were thought to be American Sabres. They dived at the Navy aircraft, but did not open fire, at 20,000 feet, coming down to 5,000 feet after which they turned north and left the area.

Deteriorating weather reduced somewhat the number of sorties flown by the Far Eastern Air Force warplanes during part of the week. Whenever conditions permitted Allied aircraft struck hard at enemy installations throughout North Korea.

In its weekly summary for the seven-day period ending 17 October the Far East Air Force reported that during that week its combat planes had mounted 7,720 effective sorties, for a new weekly record for the war. The previous high was 7,490 sorties flown during one week last May.

During last week American F-86 Sabre Jets shot down 10 enemy jets, probably destroyed one, and damaged two others. Friendly losses include one American F-86, and one South African F-51 lost in air combat, and two F-84s, one F-51, and one South Korean Mustang lost to enemy ground fire, with one F-86, and one F-84 lost to other causes, making a total of eight friendly aircraft lost during the week.

Destruction reports for last week show that 355 bunkers, 570 vehicles, 1,130 buildings, 115 gun positions, three supply stacks, two supply dumps, and 12 bridges were destroyed or damaged. Approximately 285 troop casualties were inflicted on the enemy by Allied land planes, and about 100 rail and road cuts were made.

Enemy Aircraft Losses

Enemy aircraft losses since the start of the war are 682 planes destroyed, 110 probably destroyed, and 746 damaged, for a total of 1,484, including 1,212 MIGs. Friendly planes lost are 94 in air combat, 581 to enemy ground fire, and 133 to

AF Engr. Training Project

The first training project of its kind for Air Force Engineers has just successfully passed its initial phase at Marietta, Ga., where about 180 officers and men have begun using a 495,000 square-foot steel storage structure erected by them from the ground up.

The huge warehouse—a standardized single-story, steel-frame building—was produced by the Luria Engineering Company at its fabricating plant in Bethlehem, Pa., and shipped by rail to its erection site earlier this year.

Work on a second storage building of the same type, which will have a floor area of 480,000 sq. ft., has just been started by the engineer-trainees. It is due to be completed after the first of the year.

Both warehouses are to be used by the Lockheed Aircraft Corporation, which has a B-47 manufacturing plant at the Marietta site, and the Air Materiel Command for the storing of parts, equipment and machine tools.

The Project was developed jointly by the Air Force and Lockheed to provide training in steel erection and general building construction for officers and men of the 835th Engineer Aviation Battalion, a reserve unit of the Aviation Engineer Force from the Wolters AFB at Mineral Wells, Tex.

Adm. Cleaves Joins Firm

Rear Adm. Willis E. Cleaves, USN (ret.), has joined Bendix Radio Division of Bendix Aviation Corporation as staff assistant to E. K. Foster, Division general manager and Bendix vice president.

Admiral Cleaves, who most recently was director of aviation sales for Collins Radio Company, retired from the Navy in 1946 after 26 years of active duty. A graduate of the U. S. Naval Academy with the class of 1924, he was among the first group of his class to enter naval aviation, earning his wings at Pensacola Naval Air Station in 1926.

Following his early aviation experience in flying boats and seaplanes, Admiral Cleaves was assigned to duty aboard the Navy's first big carrier, USS Saratoga. As a member of the Saratoga's famous "Fighting 3" squadron, he helped develop dive-bombing tactics.

The outbreak of World War II found him in command of the Bermuda-based Patrol Squadron 74, which was one of the first units to attack and sink a German submarine after Pearl Harbor.

Admiral Cleaves later earned the Silver Star for gallantry in action during the Aleutians campaign and received a Purple Heart after his command, the seaplane tender USS Casco, was torpedoed by a Japanese submarine. Though the Casco carried 90,000 gallons of aviation gasoline, a cargo of bombs and a deck load of torpedoes, she survived the attack and drove the Jap sub ashore, leading to its subsequent destruction by plane and destroyer action.

Following the Aleutian Islands fighting, Admiral Cleaves was named commanding officer of the Naval Air Station at Daytona Beach, Fla., where he directed a dive bombing and operational training program for Navy pilots. In 1944, he became assistant chief of naval communications and, at the end of the war, was given command of the new carrier, USS Palau.

A native of Portland, Me., the new Bendix Radio executive will make his home at 3807 Fenchurch rd., Baltimore.

AF Discloses First Flight

Of X-3 Research Plane

The Air Force announced on 20 Oct. the first flight of the Douglas X-3, a research aircraft, at the Air Force Flight Test Center, Edwards AFB, Calif. William Bridgeman, test pilot for the Douglas Aircraft Corporation, was at the controls.

Undertaken by the Air Research and Development Command, with the cooperation of the National Advisory Committee for Aeronautics and the Navy, the X-3 project is directed toward the development of an aircraft design capable of unusually high speeds. More than sixty combinations of power plants and configurations were investigated before selecting the final aircraft design.

Performance details, design information and photographs are not being released by the Air Force as every effort is being made to protect the security of this aircraft, which will play an important part in advancing this nation's air power.

The Air Force has previously announced the successful flights of three other research aircraft, the Bell X-1, the Northrop X-4, and the Bell X-5. The X-1 was the first aircraft to exceed the speed of sound.

The Air Research and Development Command and NACA are now acquiring additional data from improved versions of the X-1. The X-4 is designed for transonic speeds and is currently being flown at the Air Force Flight Test Center. The X-5 is the first aircraft to feature wings whose angle of sweepback may be varied in flight. Flight tests of this aircraft are in process at the Air Force Flight Test Center under the direction of NACA and the Air Force.

Heads Guided Missiles Div.

Edwin A. Speakman has been appointed General Manager of the Fairchild Guided Missiles Division, Wyandanch, N. Y., effective 1 Nov., according to an announcement this week by Richard S. Bouteille, President of the Fairchild Engine and Airplane Corporation. Mr. Speakman has been Vice Chairman of the Research and Development Board, Department of Defense, the past two years.

Mr. Speakman was appointed to the Naval Research Laboratory in Washington, D. C. in 1939, where he was made Assistant Superintendent of the Radio Division and headed the Countermeasures Branch of the Laboratory. During this period he initiated developments for Naval radar equipment for which he received the Navy's Meritorious Civilian Service Award in 1946. In 1949 he joined the Research and Development Board as executive director of the Committee on Electronics.

Fairchild's Guided Missiles Division was formed during the later stages of World War II to develop an anti-aircraft missile for fleet defense against kamikaze attacks. The division has produced missiles for all three branches of the Armed Services—the Navy, the Air Force and the Army Field Forces.

Produce Turbine Starters

Production of air turbine starters is underway at the new $5,000,000 Phoenix, Ariz., plant of AiResearch Manufacturing Company of Arizona with initial deliveries to the Navy scheduled this month, Murray S. Gelber, vice president and manager, said this week.

taken. On the contrary, the Director of the civilian and military technical staffs reports full cooperation from the Military Departments in the provision of the data required. While some confusion may have been momentarily caused by the three different methods of Congressional approach to this problem, I believe that this situation was promptly corrected by the action of the Planning Group of July 19th and the directive of August 15th and that the enterprise is underway along the lines covered by the legislation, your Committee report and the joint letter. Every assistance has been given to this project and it is under the continuous supervision of Assistant Secretary Rosenberg.

"I continue to feel as indicated in our conversations in the past, and as you recommend in the report of the Preparedness Investigating Subcommittee, that greater economy must be obtained in the Military Departments if we are to maintain adequate defense over a period of time. Considerable progress has been made in this direction over the past two years and there is promise of further substantial savings as the experimental steps we have taken in this direction prove themselves in the field. Knowing of your great personal interest in this matter, I hope we may count upon your understanding support in our efforts to attain our common objective.

"Since your letter to me dated October 7th was released to the press, I feel obliged to reply to their inquiries as to the content of my answer. Accordingly, I am releasing a copy of this letter after delivery to your office.

"With kindest regards, I am

"Very sincerely yours,

Oregon Bonus Warning

Oregon veterans of World War II are warned that 1 Dec. is the deadline for applying for the Oregon bonus. Applications to be valid must be postmarked on or before midnight of that date. Administering agency is the Department of Veterans' Affairs, State Library Building, Salem, Ore.

Veterans overseas or elsewhere who may not have access to the Oregon bonus application forms in time should write the Oregon veterans' department before the deadline and request that the letter be considered an application. Such letters should contain date and place of entry into World War II service, and should be accompanied by a certified copy of discharge.

Likewise, a veteran waiting for certified copies of his discharge or for other necessary documents should file his application if the deadline is drawing near, and state that the supporting documents will be submitted later.

The deadline is inflexible and cannot be extended by the Oregon legislature, as it is set by the constitutional amendment authorizing the bonus.

The Oregon bonus pays $10 for each month of domestic service and $15 for each month of foreign or sea duty between 16 Sept. 1940, and 30 June 1946. Maximum payment is $600.

The veteran must have been a bona fide Oregon resident for at least one year immediately prior to his active duty, have served at least 90 days and have been honorably discharged.

If he was discharged for disabilities incurred in service, filed a claim with the Veterans Administration within 90 days and received a 50 per cent or higher disability rating based on those disabilities at any time prior to filing for the bonus, he will draw the full $600.

Survivors of a deceased Oregon veteran entitled, in order, are the unremarried widow, the child or children, and the parent or parents.

which are assigned directly to Admiral Carney, and the British Mediterranean Fleet under Admiral Earl Mountbatten which is under a somewhat different classification but which nevertheless continues heartily cooperative.

Longstep will have special application to a problem which is of profound interest to France, that is, the maintenance of connection of France and French North Africa. The means will be conventional, from the American naval viewpoint, but carrier employment will be on a scale with which the Mediterranean has not been familiar, utilizing the Sixth Fleet's three carriers, one from France, and one or two from Britain. A modest landing operation will be carried out by U.S. Fleet Marines.

During this week there has been a conference of Admiral Carney with his own naval subcommanders and with the British Middle East commanders of air, ground, and sea. It marks another cautious step toward a better integration of Allied forces in that area.

Appraisal of activities in Exercise Hold-fast in northwest Germany includes an approving official judgment of the Dutch contingent's progress to date. Last spring the new forces were training chiefly at a company level, and it is surprising to see that in six months they have acquired ability to participate with other NATO forces with a corps organization comprising division and brigade plus corps troops, and to perform in creditable fashion. For this one must believe that great credit should be given not only to the Dutch themselves for their industry and aptitude but to the small training mission of British-French-American veterans headed by Brig. Gen. Robert B. Ward. It is not easy to develop this sort of aptitude in a people which for generations has been disinclined toward military training.

other causes, for a total of 808.

Since the start of the war, planes of the Far East Air Force and attached units have flown 599,565 effective sorties, and have destroyed 59,895 vehicles, 8,720 rail cars, 785 bridges, 1,270 tanks, and 920 tunnels. In addition it is estimated that attacks by land planes have inflicted 178,090 Red troop casualties. Damage claims and reported losses do not include those of carrier-based Navy and Marine planes.

Casualty Report

The Defense Department this week announced that American battle casualties of the Korean war, including all notifications of next of kin through 17 October, total 122,117. Of these 21,377 were killed in action or died of wounds; 90,114 wounded in action, including 1,986 who later died; and 12,819 missing in action, including 207 who died, 1,390 who returned to military control, and 1,819 captured by the enemy, leaving 9,403 currently missing.

Of the total casualties 96,244 were sustained by the Army, 1,662 by the Navy, 22,915 by the Marine Corps, and 1,296 by the Air Force.

NOSE, THROAT,

and Accessory Organs not Adversely Affected by Smoking Chesterfields

FIRST SUCH REPORT EVER PUBLISHED ABOUT ANY CIGARETTE

A responsible consulting organization has reported the results of a continuing study by a competent medical specialist and his staff on the effects of smoking Chesterfield cigarettes.

A group of people from various walks of life was organized to smoke only Chesterfields. For six months this group of men and women smoked their normal amount of Chesterfields — 10 to 40 a day. 45% of the group have smoked Chesterfields continually from one to thirty years for an average of 10 years each.

At the beginning and at the end of the six-months period each smoker was given a thorough examination, including X-ray pictures, by the medical specialist and his assistants. The examination covered the sinuses as well as the nose, ears and throat.

The medical specialist, after a thorough examination of every member of the group, stated: "It is my opinion that the ears, nose, throat and accessory organs of all participating subjects examined by me were not adversely affected in the six-months period by smoking the cigarettes provided."
